Commandos Join French Patriots In Battle To Rid Corsica of Nazis

Fighting Takes "Favorable Turn" after Surprise Action To Capture Key Mediterranean Island.

By WES GALLAGHER
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 20 (P)—French commandos, taking their first active part in the war since Tunisia, have stormed into Corsica to battle side by side with French patriots in an effort to grab the key Mediterranean island less than fifty miles from the northern shores of the Nazi-held Italian mainland, it was announced tonight.

The French high command, in announcing the swift, surprise action against the Germans on the island, declared the fighting there had taken "a favorable turn."

The news of the French landing, under the very noses of the Germans and within range of the Nazi air force in both France and Italy, came a few hours after it was announced that Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American Fifth Army had seized key positions overlooking the Gulf of Naples.

Corsicans have long engaged in guerrilla activities against Axis forces on the island. They seized upon the capitulation of Italy to carry their warfare into the open.

Naval Vessels Participate

With lightning-like suddenness, the commandos swept onto Corsica to help them drive out the Nazis, who still occupy the eastern side of the island in force. (This dispatch did not bring out the point from which the commandos struck. They may have embarked from either North Africa or Sicily.)

A few minutes before the communique was issued, the French-controlled radio at Algiers broadcast a warning to Germans that Corsican guerrillas wearing skull-and-crossbones insignia on their sleeves must be considered regular soldiers and treated as prisoners of war in event of capture.

Naval vessels participated in the action, which included swift dashes into German-protected waters.

NBC Reporter Don Hollenbeck, in a broadcast from Allied headquarters, said that two Italian divisions which drove the Nazis off Sardinia were slated to cross to Corsica to help the French drive. He said the Germans were "trying to get to the port of Bastia for quick evacuation to the port of Leghorn on the mainland."

Third War Loan Drive Levels Off Into Hard Pull

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (P)—The Treasury counted only $506,000,000 in new bond sales tonight as the $150,000,000 Third War Loan seemingly leveled off into a hard pull.

The total stood at $10,745,000,000 and found only one state, Maryland, over the top on its quota.

Officials emphasized, however, that many series E—the so-called "people's bond"—sales have not been officially reported due to the lag between issuing the bonds and receipt of the money by the Treasury or federal reserve banks.

Maryland's quota-topping performance was reported to the Treasury at noon today when a tabulation at Baltimore showed sales of $203,000,000 or 103.6 per cent of the state's $196,000,000 goal.

The Treasury, meanwhile, released a breakdown on bond sales through Saturday, when Maryland stood at ninety-nine per cent to top the nation with Rhode Island second at ninety-two per cent and New York third at eighty-three per cent.

Navy Casualties

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (P)—The navy announced today fifty-seven casualties, including six dead, one wounded and fifty missing.

This brings to 29,644 the total of navy, marine corps and coast guard casualties reported to next of kin since December 7, 1941. The grand total includes 10,234 dead, 5,214 wounded and 10,051 missing, and 4,145 prisoners of war.

THIS BLASTED SKELETON of a building is the result of mid-July bombing of Rome by Allied airmen, according to the scene's identification in an Italian newsreel which reached the United States through neutral sources.

Marshall Says Draft Reduction Would Be Unwise

Chief of Staff Takes Stand Fathers, if Needed, Must Be Taken

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (P)—Sketching a picture of well-trained American armed forces poised to strike powerful blows at Japan and Germany, Gen. George C. Marshall told Congress today in a discussion of the father draft that it would be dangerous to throw Allied offensives off stride by interrupting the flow of inductions for the army.

The chief of staff's warning was echoed by Admiral Ernest J. King, commander of the United States fleet, who declared a reduction in the draft might "adversely affect the conduct of the war" and delay putting ships and aircraft into action.

The two, along with Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York, set forth their positions in testimony before the Senate and House Military committees on a bill by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) postponing until Jan. 1 the drafting of fathers.

While repeatedly saying that the drafting of fathers remained a question for manpower officials and the selective Service, Marshall insisted there should be no disruption in the schedule of inductions calculated to place 1,200,000 additional men in the armed forces before the end of the year.

Marshall's Stand

Briefly, Marshall said that the army is fully trained for the first time, that it has the equipment it needs and that it has now reached the point where it is ready to take the offensive of far flung battle fronts.

During this discussion of the man-power question, the House neared a vote on the Fulbright resolution committing this nation to help form an international organization.

"Autopilot" Keeps U. S. Bombers On Course, Increases Efficiency

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (P)—A super-sensitive electronic mechanism that keeps bombing planes on their courses despite cross currents, wind variations and air blasts from exploding anti-aircraft shells, was explained publicly for the first time here today.

The device is an automatic electronically-controlled pilot, said to have been "one of America's best kept military secrets." Details were announced only because loss of some planes so equipped made it reasonable to assume that the enemy no longer was in the dark about it.

The improvement, announced jointly by the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company and the army air forces, who co-operated in its development, was credited with being one of the factors in the bomb devastation in Europe and Asia. Its use, a company official said at a luncheon, is "equivalent to a material increase in the number of planes participating in an attack."

Alfred M. Wilson, vice president in charge of the company's aeronautical division, said the autopilot was designed to "take over completely the duties of the pilot on bombing runs," and to "hold the plane on a designated course without wavering." It was not designed to replace pilots but to give them maximum protection, he added.

"Precision bombing requires a steady platform because if the plane is tipped or otherwise off its course at the time the bomb is released, this tipping or movement will be imparted to the bomb and cause it to miss the target," Wilson explained.

The autopilot provides an artificial tripod to hold the plane on the bull's eye when bombs are released, he said, just as a rifleman would use a rest to steady his gun.

Russian Advance Traps Thousands Of Nazis in Bend Of Dnieper River

Red Army Takes 1,130 Villages; Smolensk Battle Nearing Climax; Germans Fight to Finish.

By JAMES M. LONG
LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 21 (P)—The Red army overran more than 1,130 villages yesterday, flanking the German central anchor at Smolensk and cutting the Kiev-Chernigov highway and the railway into the Crimea amid signs that the enemy was abandoning the Caucasus.

A Moscow communique also disclosed early today a vast Red army wheeling movement aimed at Chernigov, on the Middle Dnieper south-east of Kiev, in an effort to trap hundreds of thousands of enemy troops in the river bend. One Red army unit was within forty miles of Chernigov area, key to the extensive rail net work in the bend.

East of the bend the Red army reached a point only eight miles from Melitopol after snapping the Crimean escape railway between Zaporozhe and Dnepropetrovsk and capturing a town only fifteen miles from the Dnieper, said the broadcast communique recorded by the Soviet Monitor.

House Displays Desire To Assure A Durable Peace

Powerful Bi-Partisan Support Given to Fulbright Resolution

By ALEX H. SINGLETON
WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (P)—The House took time out today from the problems of war to display an overwhelming desire to assure a durable peace.

In debate leading up to a vote, the House members gave powerful bi-partisan support to the tersely worded Fulbright resolution which would tell the world that Congress is ready to support creation of "international machinery with power adequate to establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace."

The House will reach a vote on the resolution tomorrow, after approximately two more hours of debate. Much of today's session was occupied by time-consuming quorum calls and by argument over procedure.

The history-making debate—first wartime congressional expression on foreign policy—found the resolution's supporters rallying behind the cry that the United States must avoid the mistakes they said followed the last war and must assume responsibilities in world affairs.

McCormack Sets Off Debate

Against that contention, foes of the resolution assailed it as meaningless, charged that it repudiated long-standing national policy against "entangling alliances," and maintained it would relinquish American sovereign and constitutional rights.

But the dominant voice on the floor was that of the collaborationists, as they blocked efforts of the opposition to return the resolution to the Rules committee and to change the procedure for consideration in order to permit amendments from the floor.

Majority Leader McCormack (D-Mass.) set off the debate by declaring:

Italy's Blow Up Tunnel Trapping German Train

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 20 (P)—A Chamber, France, dispatch to the Tribune De Geneve said today that Italian forces had blown up the Italian end of an 800-meter (one-half mile) tunnel in the Alps while a German troop train was passing through.

The dispatch said thirty persons were killed and 150 wounded and a second smaller Nazi troop train was caught by sliding rock, caused by the explosion, and ten were killed.

Assistant Freight Traffic Manager Of Railroad Dies

BALTIMORE, Sept. 20 (P)—T. Herbert Pee, 68, assistant freight traffic manager of the Western Maryland Railroad, died unexpectedly today in a Pennsylvania Railroad train late today.

Cecil county medical examiner, Dr. R. C. Dodson, reported that Pee's body was removed from the train at Perryville, Md., and said he died following a heart attack.

Pee has been an employee of the Western Maryland line for fifty-two years. He lived in Baltimore.

THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY, advancing up the west coast of Italy, has effected a juncture with the United States Fifth Army, near the Salerno bridgehead, it was officially announced. Heavy line roughly indicates unified battle line, and arrows show direction of Allied drives.

BADOLIO CALLS UPON ITALIANS TO TAKE UP ARMS AGAINST NAZIS

Appeal Indicates Italy Might Be Accepted as Full-Fledged Ally of America and Britain

By NOLAN NORGARD
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 20 (P)—Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio called upon the people of Italy to take up arms against their former German allies in active co-operation with the United Nations in a proclamation published here today.

The premier's appeal, in effect a declaration of hostilities, was the first official indication from any source that the Italians might be accepted as full-fledged allies of America and Britain in the campaign to drive the Germans from Italy.

Badoglio declared that "all talk about unconditional surrender (to the Allies) is out of date and irrelevant decisively against Germany today," adding that "we have intervened decisively against Germany following on the aggressive attitude of the Germans."

It was announced that the premier, now officially disclosed to be in Allied-held Italian territory, made his call to arms from a new Italian government station, Radio Italian, on the mainland Sept. 16, two days before the voice attributed to Benito Mussolini was broadcast over the German radio in an appeal to Italians to disregard the armistice with the Allies and fight at Germany's side.

The text of the marshal's speech was carried by plane to North Africa and released here through Allied military channels.

Italians Take Sardinia

The new stand apparently committed Badoglio and his followers, and the bulk of the Italian fleet which already is in Allied ports, to active combat alongside Allied troops and ships.

Already two Italian divisions—assisted by Italian naval units—were stated here to have departed from their previous passive attitude and chased the Germans out of the island of Sardinia on Badoglio's orders and with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's approval.

The marshal's ringing declaration told his countrymen it was their "absolute duty to fight on the side of the British and Americans against the Germans and against the few senseless Italians—no longer."

Maryland Passes Quota in War Bond Sales

First State in the Nation To Reach Goal in Third War Loan Drive

BALTIMORE, Sept. 20 (P)—Maryland was the first state of the union to reach and pass its bond sales quota in the Third War Loan, War Finance committee headquarters were notified today.

Sales at the close of business Saturday totaled $203,000,000, or 103.6 per cent of the state's quota of $196,000,000, officials said.

The purchases were made in ten working days since the beginning of the campaign and included the free state holiday Defenders' day, with which no other state contended as an interruption to the campaign schedule.

Hooper T. Miles, chairman of the state war finance committee, said the remainder of the war loan period would be devoted to augmenting the quota.

Mines Sown from Air by Allied Planes Take Toll of Nazi Ships

LONDON, Sept. 20 (P)—A quietly mounting "invisible" Allied air campaign against enemy shipping has been making increasing inroads in Germany's war production, it was disclosed tonight. This campaign is waged with mines sown from the air.

While large-scale air attacks against the German air force and Nazi industry have been holding the limelight in recent weeks, the unseen campaign has proceeded methodically by day and night from British bases with both British and American planes participating.

Nazi vessels are being torpedoed, bombed, strafed, and sunk by mines sown from the air. The torpedoes have been intensified until some dozen craft were sunk and no fewer than sixty set afire or damaged during the last week, a toll which the Nazis, if they followed the line of their propaganda reports in the past, would magnify to a big naval coup.

The attacks are unfolding largely along coastal routes, in the Baltic sea, and among the Scandinavian straits—routes as important to the Nazis now as trans-ocean shipping is to the Allies.

With her highly self-contained continental production system, Germany can exist on small imports from overseas, but continental materials must be moved from mines and other sources to her factories.

A large portion of the burden of her overstrained railroads, bombed, shot up and sabotaged by her enemies, has fallen on coastal traffic. The campaign against this traffic is what the Allies call "sub-marines of the air" attacking.

All main branches of the RAF have been participating in this attack for some time, and recently American heavy bombers have been helping along the campaign during their operational flights.

Nazis Are Fleeing From Corsica as French Soldiers Invade Island

Naples Is Brought within Fifth Army's Artillery Range by Capture of Strategic Peninsula

By WES GALLAGHER
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 20 (P)—Naples was visible and within twelve-mile artillery range tonight of the United States Fifth Army, which has captured the Sorrento peninsula, and French commandos swarmed onto strategic Corsica, thus threatening the German flank in Northern Italy.

Announcing the all-French Commando operation, the high command of Gen. Henri Giraud declared that progress was favorable. The Commandos swept onto the island, directly above newly freed Sardinia, to help rebellious Corsicans drive the Nazis from their homeland.

In capturing the Sorrento peninsula, the Fifth army plunged through tottering Nazi resistance for a fifteen-mile advance through mountains shrouded in heat and dust.

All Sardinia was in the hands of two Italian divisions which acted on orders of Marshal Pietro Badoglio and chased German elements onto the French island of Corsica, seven miles north, which also appeared untenable.

A United Nations radio broadcast from Algiers said that the Allied penetration of the Salerno area now extended inland nineteen miles. "The British Eighth Army is joined 'in full strength' with the Fifth," said the broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press.

While the British Eighth Army consolidated its junction with Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army on the churned beaches of Salerno, the British Fifth Corps in the south captured Gioia, twenty-eight miles inland and northwest of Taranto, extending the Allied hold on Southern Italy.

Destroy 100 Nazi Trucks

Allied air power, particularly American invader dive-bombers, ripped and tore with high explosives at German convoys totaling as high as 1,800 vehicles retreating north of Contursi from the center of the Salerno front under the pressure of the Fifth and Eighth armies. Of 1,800 trucks jamming the roads in this area, the Allies destroyed 100 and damaged 137 others.

WPB Announces Five Per Cent Newsprint Cut

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (P)—The War Production Board today announced a five per cent cut in newspapers' consumption of newsprint on October 1 and told publishers that "a further, perhaps far deeper" curtailment is inevitable next year.

WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson said that even with the new fourth quarter curtailment, consumption of newsprint in that period will exceed production by 94,000 tons, or about ten per cent.

In a report to Representative Boren (D-Okla.), chairman of the House subcommittee investigating newsprint, Nelson said WPB has decided to hold the curtailment to five per cent in accordance with the newspaper industry's wish. But he warned that by using up its reserve supplies now, the industry must run the risk of more drastic cuts next year.

Nelson said a shortage of man-power for cutting of pulp wood both in Canada and the United States underlies the newsprint situation.

No Benefits for Year

Even if several remedies now being applied or under study prove successful—including the use of war prisoners and the furloughing of Canadian soldiers—no benefits can be expected for ten to eighteen months, Nelson said, because that much time is required to convert wood to paper.

He indicated disbelief that the remedies would be successful unless efforts to increase the cutting of pulp wood bring "unanticipated favorable results."

JACK VINTON, a mechanic in the plant. Adam, not being aware of Ruth's feelings, is just becoming intrigued with BRENDA LEIGH, who is now enjoying an extended vacation in Linville, which she left several years ago to launch a journalistic career in New York City.

YESTERDAY: After receiving a note warning that his war plant is going to be blown up, Adam musingly compares the dangers of that with the explosive things that might happen if Bill Potter should object to the loveliness he does to his wife, Susan, in an amateur play they are rehearsing.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

IF SUSAN POTTER had any secret inclination toward weakening in her determination to play the role of Lila in Peter Platt's comedy drama, or to go to work in Adam North's factory cafeteria, that inclination was quickly dispelled two mornings later when she walked into Bill Potter's office and found Alicia Carter sitting there, fairly dripping silver fox furs.

AT FIRST SIGN OF A COLD USE 666
666 TABLETS, SALVE, NOSE DROPS

For a moment she nearly forgot her reason for being there herself, the necessity for asking Bill for some extra housekeeping cash, since practically everything she had started out to purchase had gone up in price.

"Oh, pardon me," she said, trying not to sound too sarcastic, "I didn't know you had a caller."

Bill looked up. "Hello, Susan. You know Mrs. Carter, don't you?" "Yes," said Susan. "We met when she was Mrs. Morton."

Alicia laughed lightly. "Are you sure it wasn't when I was Mrs. Smithers?" She held out her hand. "So glad to see you again, Mrs. Potter."

"Thanks," said Susan. Bill scowled at her, no doubt thinking she was terribly rude not to say she was glad. "Well, let him think what he wants to think," Susan told herself. "I'm not glad to see Alicia Carter sitting in his office, and if he has a grain of masculine common sense he knows it."

"What can I do for you?" Bill asked, exactly as though he were a clerk in a store and she was a customer.

"I can wait," she said. "I don't want to interrupt."

"Oh, don't mind me!" said Alicia. "Go ahead. Bill and I can talk later."

"So, she's calling him Bill," Susan said down in her throat. "Well, well, how perfectly ducky!"

"Very well," she said aloud, "here goes. Mrs. Potter would like an extra ten. Mr. Potter. Food has gone up something scandalous." She looked at Alicia. "Feeding a husband and keeping him fit is quite a problem, or did you have to face it?"

"Oh, no," said Alicia. "My first two ate anything set before them, and cared not a hang for keeping fit." She shrugged. "Come to think of it, that was why I divorced them. You know—getting thin of hair and thick of girth." She smiled at Bill. "I must say you do a marvelous job with your husband."

"Thanks," said Bill. "Thanks," said Susan. "Anyway, I shall never have to divorce him because of his figure."

"How much did you say you wanted?" Bill said, feeling more and more uncomfortable, and getting more and more annoyed. Hang women, anyway!

"Ten dollars," said Susan. "What with the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker adding a penny here and a penny there, it's a wonder a person can ever have anything left for War Stamps and Bonds."

"Here you are," said Bill not very graciously. Susan took the greenback he was holding out to her.

"I'll come back later," she said as she tucked the money into her purse, "and you can take me to lunch."

"But, Susan," said Bill, "I—that is—we—Mrs. Carter and I—"

"He means he's taking me to lunch," said Alicia, very calmly. "I asked him to. We have a lot of details to talk over in regard to my property."

"Heavens, haven't you made up your mind yet to sell?" said Susan. "I'm going to sell all right," said Alicia. "But there's a lot of the property, and I can't decide which I want to keep for my own, and which I want to sell Bill for his adorable mill-family cottages."

"I see," said Susan. She looked at her husband. "Very well, then, I'll lunch at the factory cafeteria."

"Where?" said Alicia in surprise. "The factory cafeteria," Susan repeated. "I have to see Adam North anyway about my job, so—"

"You mean you're going to work at the factory?" "Yes, my dear," said Susan. "Haven't you heard there's a war?"

"Naturally, but—"

"Susan thinks she can show them how to run the cafeteria," said Bill.

"She has big ideas about feeding working people."

"I'm only going to do my bit," said Susan. "I'm going to take over the food planning and help Adam save money on food and at the same time increase the efficiency of the factory workers."

"How amusing!" said Alicia. "Amusing is hardly the word for it," said Susan. "Or maybe you're the sort of person who would get a big laugh out of seeing a bomb fall smack into your bedroom." She walked to the door and paused there. "Have a nice lunch, you two," she said. "When I get the cafeteria going the way I wish it to go, I'll let you know. Perhaps you would like to come down some day for lunch—as my guests, of course."

"Oh that would be sweet!" said Alicia.

"Yes, wouldn't it?" said Bill. "Or," Susan continued, eyeing Alicia, "maybe you'd like a job as a waitress."

"Why—I—"

Susan didn't let her finish. "Doing your bit, I mean," she said. And then she hurried out.

In the hall she stood for a moment with her hand pressed tightly to her eyes. "I didn't know I could be such a cat," she thought. Then she rang for the elevator. She hadn't quite made up her mind when leaving home that she would call on Adam North in regard to the cafeteria—but now she did make it up.

The idea of Bill Potter's sitting there smiling at that much-married, fur-bound, self-satisfied female from over in Elmwood! And letting her inveigle him into taking her out to lunch! Not that it had taken very much inveigling, she imagined.

She strode from the office building, her high heels making angry little clicking sounds as she walked. Very well, if Bill could sit in his office and chat business—if it was business—with a woman like Alicia Carter, she would sit in Adam North's office and chat business with him.

Maybe if he paid her enough for her work she'd start dripping silver foxes all over the place.

Did you know this about the WAC?

... that the Army needs thousands more Wacs at once?

From all branches of the Army, officers are wiring in reports: "The Wacs are doing a great job. Give us more!" But there aren't half enough Wacs to fill the requests. Your fighting men need you in the WAC—and now!

... that all qualified women have a chance to compete for officer training?

If you meet the requirements, you may join the WAC as an officer candidate direct from civilian life. Or, you may join the WAC as a private and compete for selection as an officer candidate from the ranks.

... that WAC training may fit you for a career after the war?

Wacs learn radio, executive and staff work, mess management, photography, and dozens of other skills that may help them to a real career when the war is over.

... that WAC pay is good pay?

Even as a WAC private you get $50 a month—all clear. Wacs are given board, room, clothing, medical and dental care. Their pay increases with each step-up in rank.

... that Wacs are actually members of the Army?

Congress recently passed a bill making the WAC a part of the Army. So now a Wac gets all the benefits a soldier does—such as government life insurance at low rates, free mail, and veterans' benefits when the war is over.

... that being a Wac is an important way to help win the war?

Not every woman can be a Wac—only those between 20 and 50 years of age, single, or married but without dependents, without children under 14.

If you are one of these specially qualified women, then you belong in the WAC—that's where you can have a really vital share in helping win this war. Get full details at your nearest U. S. Army Recruiting Station. The Wac on duty will be glad to tell you all about the WAC and the thrilling opportunities it offers you. Go now!

SOUTHERN STATES FARM LIFE

LAST winter was hard on field seed production—a lot of it was winter killed during the severe weather. Along with the weather, labor shortages and increasing land-lease shipments have cut down on supplies available to patrons. Some seed stocks are going to be very short—particularly legumes. Southern States seed men report that Red, Mammoth and Alsike Clover will be on the short side . . . alfalfa will be scarce . . . and the supply of Crimson Clover will be about 20% smaller than last year. Vetch and Rye Grass supplies are also limited . . . and small grain seeds are definitely short.

All this emphasizes the importance of ordering seed early. Talk over your plans now with your local Southern States Cooperative Service Agency and book ahead for your own protection.

Once you've had a good dose of the Red Measles, you don't have to worry about them from then on. That's what happens to Clover and Anthracnose disease. Clover that's grown in the Mid-western and Eastern states where Anthracnose is prevalent develops a resistance to this disease. That's why all Southern States Clover Seed is selected from the Anthracnose belt. This Anthracnose-resistant Clover Seed is clean, hardy and highly resistant to injury from this disease which is common to Southern States territory.

Remember, feed starts with seed. Through Southern States Cooperative which had its beginning in 1923 as the Virginia Seed Service, farmers have been providing themselves with high quality adapted seed for the past twenty years.

Impending Burma Campaign Likely To Be Effective

May Have Direct Influence in Area from New Guinea to Indian Ocean

By ELTON C. FAY
Associated Press War Analyst

The Allies in the Asiatic war are not forgetting the Japanese now lurking virtually undisturbed in their Malaya and East Indies strongholds.

The impending Burma campaign, although in a theater far removed, may have a direct influence in the vast area stretching west from the New Guinea-Solomon front to the Indian ocean.

President Roosevelt says "we are determined to take the offensive" in Burma. He put that declaration into the same message in which he noted there had been "one serious gap in the lines of our globe-encircling sea-power," the 3,000-mile interval between Ceylon, in the Indian ocean, and Northwest Australia. That gap, he said, now can be closed because naval strength once needed in the Mediterranean can be diverted.

Japs Well Entrenched

north of them are Singapore and Borneo. But because they do flank the gap which is now to be closed does not necessarily mean that the islands themselves can be retaken by amphibious operations carried over and launched from the sea route. The enemy has been there, presumably is well entrenched and operation from the sea against his guns and shore-based aviation could be difficult and costly. It would even be unsuccessful.

But Burma is athwart the Japanese overland route to Malaya and the Indies. It is within reach of seaborne invasion forces from Ceylon and India and, from the north, is threatened by land armies growing in strength at the India border.

With Burma and Indo-China, or an East-West cross section of the two countries, in Allied control the enemy's land route to his positions in the Lower Malayan peninsula and the Indies would be cut. And what is more, his sea route would be brought within easy bomber range. Allied forces would be in position for a war of attrition or for a full-scale flanking move to the south.

To the east, the jaws of the pincer close steadily. General MacArthur's air, sea and land forces progress along the enemy's Southwest Pacific flank, advancing west and north.

With Burma in Allied hands, China would receive the huge stocks of war goods for which she now starves. The rate of progress in the whole Pacific war would be accelerated.

Specific Plans Made

Allied four-engine bombers now stand on Chinese air fields, many of them grounded because the flood of gasoline they should have is presently only a trickle. The material for full-scale mechanized warfare awaits the reopening of a land route to the Chinese front.

Even with such air strength as is now available in the China-Burma skies, Allied forces are wearing down Japan's aviation and, says the president, "that process will continue until we are ready to strike right at the heart of Japan itself."

UMW Negotiators Hope To Report Settlement Soon

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 20 (AP)—John L. Lewis said today that United Mine Workers negotiators are "hopeful that we will soon be in a position to report a constructive and gainful settlement of our

The UMW president made the statement in a telegram from his Washington office to a quadriennial convention of UMW District 1.

The dispute, centering around wage increases demands and portal-to-portal pay, has caused extensive strikes and unauthorized walkouts in coal fields. Miners now are working under a truce expiring October 31.

Something For Nothing

THE ENORMOUS EXTENT to which the Washington administration has gone in winning control over the states through the system of money largesses is shown in part of a report by the Holt Legislative committee in West Virginia appointed to investigate the cost of state government dealing specifically with the subject of federal subsidies.

In a succinct appraisal of this practice of receiving federal moneys—a process of taking it from one public pocket and putting it into another, the committee notes: "It is not uncommon to hear legislators say that we should appropriate money for this or that because the federal government will match the fund or give us two dollars for every dollar we spend. They feel they are getting something for nothing. But if we do not need the program, why pay half the cost of any part of it? It is not money lost to refuse these matching programs that are not needed."

A portion of the report as given by the Charleston Daily Mail is of interest. "In a detailed breakdown of where and how these federal funds (actually, funds of all the people who pay taxes)," it says, "the committee shows this golden trickle from Washington started as a mere trickle by New Deal standards in 1933 when only $2,775,796.26 was funneled into the state. In 1934, during an election year, it jumped to $31,692,024.28, fell off to $26,844,255 the next year and in 1936 was $27,348,092.38."

"At about this point the former Kump administration began to see the dangers inherent in this creeping specter of federal intervention in state matters through the power of the purse and former Gov. Kump's official state papers, as well as those of his successor, Homer A. Holt, showed great concern about the matter."

"Despite this concern, however, in 1937 the federal treasury checks flowed into the state at the rate of $43,931,337.89. In 1938, the federal largesse was $35,761,614.89 and in 1939 the sum of $50,907,349.06 was received for all types of federal aid and subsidies! This was the high-water mark and for 1940, 1941 and 1942, federal funds were never less than $30,000,000 and not more than $45,000,000."

The Daily Mail says that moralizing on this theme is useless "other than to say that the passenger who pays the fare directs the driver." That, of course, was the purpose and intent of the Washington spenders in lading out this money, and back of that can be detected another purpose which is fascistic in tendency and to curb which is the concern of every American who wishes to continue in the enjoyment of the freedom he has had hitherto.

What Congressmen Heard Back Home

WHAT congressmen heard from the folks back home during their vacation will naturally be reflected in the legislative actions which they have now taken up. It will be interesting to note how this comes about.

While the recess was under way, some eighteen members of Congress from Minnesota, the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Iowa held a "grass roots" conference at Minneapolis. Citizens from far and wide gathered to exchange ideas and tell their representatives how they felt about this thing and that. And what did they tell their lawmakers?

According to Representative Andresson, of Minnesota, chairman of the conference, the speakers "without exception, talking for farmers, business and professional groups, demanded that Congress recover the legislative powers heretofore granted to the executive; that hundreds of policy-making bureaucrats be discharged and replaced by men of experience and that federal policies which are now crushing business and jeopardizing the production of food be cancelled."

"It was plainly indicated," Andresson added, "that those in attendance wanted no traffic with socialist experiments for a new Utopian order. Win the war and save American democracy and our system of free enterprise was the watchword of the conference."

One commentator ventures the assertion that substantially what the Midwest congressmen heard is what other congressmen and senators have heard informally from their people all over the land. Western Maryland's representative, J. Glenn Beall, let no grass grow under his feet during the recess in efforts to learn what the people of his bailiwick are thinking, and it can here be said that the trend of their thought was quite in line with that reported about it in the Midwest by Representative Andresson.

Criticism and The Courts

THE BATTLE for a free press in the United States has been marked by many clashes between public officials—working as a rule through the courts—and the press. In these battles many an editor has gone to jail in support of his principles.

Many a judge has assumed to decree that the word of a court is beyond question or even unfriendly discussion, and has asserted his view by consigning a critical editor to jail for contempt. The battle is unending. It is going on today.

The most recent outburst occurred in Alabama, where a judge resented criticism of one of his decisions by the Mobile Press and Register. The judge summoned the publisher, Ralph B. Chandler, found him guilty, fined him $100 and sentenced him to jail for six hours. The publisher appealed and won his liberty.

The appeal judge stated the clear and long-established rule in such cases. He held that "before a man can be adjudged guilty of contempt for criticising a judge or court his criticism must relate to a cause or matter still pending and undecided."

The press and the higher courts agree that public criticism of a cause which is still pending is prejudicial to the best interest of justice. The risk of influencing a court or a jury is great. The cause should be tried in court and only the evidence and the arguments admitted upon proper auspices should be considered.

But to extend this principle to the completed action of the court is to endow the courts with immunity from criticism which would promote judicial tyranny in unworthy hands and set up an antagonism in the people's minds. This antagonism existed when the constitution was adopted, and the people took care of it in the Bill of Rights. Courts should know that by this time.

A Definition Is Wanted

SOME CLARIFICATION seems to be needed of the meaning of the term "democracy" since it has been rather loosely employed of late. J. J. Sperry, of Woodstock, Va., thinks so, especially since he has received the impression that Vice President Wallace would have "democracy first" as our slogan at the peace table instead of "America first," lest soon or late we find ourselves alone, encircled and fighting against a hostile combination.

"Now, what I would like to know," Sperry writes, "is the kind of 'democracy' Mr. Wallace has in mind to back up his slogan. 'Since the war, many new kinds of 'democracy' have sprung up. Is it that of England, with a king at its head; or that of Russia, with one man as the oracle; or that of present America, with the judicial, legislative and executive branches in the grip of one person; or is it that set forth in the constitution of the United States? 'If it is the last, then hadn't we better get busy and restore it, so that we will have something more than lip service to offer at the peace table?'"

We should.

If Doc Goebbels is writing his memoirs he should title them: "From Bombast to Bomb Blast, in Four Short Years."

The world would be a better place if the last rose of summer hung around as long as does the last house fly.

Old slot machines, says an item, are being converted into booby traps. What do they mean, "converted"?

Stealing Your Sunshine

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Once I walked through the woods and came to a little clearing made by the fall of a great tree. . . . The tree lay there across a little stream, rotted and empty, so soft I could put my foot through it. Once it had risen high and widespread and it had cast a great shade at its base; it stood among its fellows and talked to them, far up there in the sky. . . . But it fell and gave the trees at its feet a chance to grow.

You could see them growing already, twenty or thirty feet tall. One in particular had leaped ahead and would be mighty, too, some day. That fatherly giant had been the protector of the little trees; it had held them back, cheated them of the sunshine, stunted their growth. And now it had gone, THEIR chance had come.

Strong and imposing men often think they are protectors of their families, particularly of their wives. They worry over how their wives would manage without them. Those "poor weak women," without experience, who have never earned money, who wouldn't know what to do with themselves if their husbands weren't there to guide and advise and decide!

Life plays a joke posthumously on many of those men. Widows, so often, grow strong and surprising when a husband dies. They grow to meet new responsibilities. They become independent, they learn to make their own decisions, and their friends observe how often they are HAPPIER than when their husbands were living. They do not confess that they are happier, they proclaim their loneliness frequently and grieve sincerely—but any stray observer can see that suddenly life is richer for them and that they are living in the strengthening sunshine, rather than in the pleasant shade.

People have a trick of stealing each other's sunshine. . . . a knack of cheating their dearest ones of the right to grow.

Strong men do that. So do strong women. Parents and children and friends, in strengthening themselves weaken those around them, as much as a great tree of the forest does. They make a pleasant weakening shade about them and no one knows that the shade is harmful until they are gone—and the strong sunshine pours down from the blue heavens and floods the vacant space they left behind.

Moscow Post Is Viewed as Likely Job for Welles

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—President Roosevelt has had on his desk for several weeks the resignation of Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, but there has been no official announcement of its acceptance. Knowing the close personal friendship that exists between the president and Mr. Welles and also that Mr. Roosevelt has a high regard for Mr. Welles's ability and experience in foreign affairs, the national capital has assumed that the president was holding up the announcement of Mr. Welles's resignation so that he could couple it with an appointment to another important post.

The opportunity for such an announcement of transfer is now available as a result of the circumstances surrounding the arrangements for a three-power conference of high officials of Russia, Britain and the United States soon to be held at Moscow, Secretary of State Hull is said to be anxious to attend the conference but that his physicians have advised against the exhausting and nerve-racking days that would have to be spent in airplane journeys to Moscow.

Moscow More Suitable

If the conference were to be held in London the situation, it is thought, might have been different and Mr. Hull would attend, but the Russian foreign minister rightly has contended that since he had to consult Marshal Stalin frequently the meeting would be more likely to be productive of good result if it were held in Moscow from which point Mr. Stalin has been unable to depart on conference trips abroad because he is in personal command every moment of the vast military operations of the Soviet army.

The news that Admiral Standley, American ambassador to Russia, is returning to the United States is associated with the fact that the admiral has on more than one occasion indicated his desire to return to America and leave the diplomatic service. He was formerly a chief of naval operations and undoubtedly would prefer to be on active duty in the naval service.

Few Major Differences

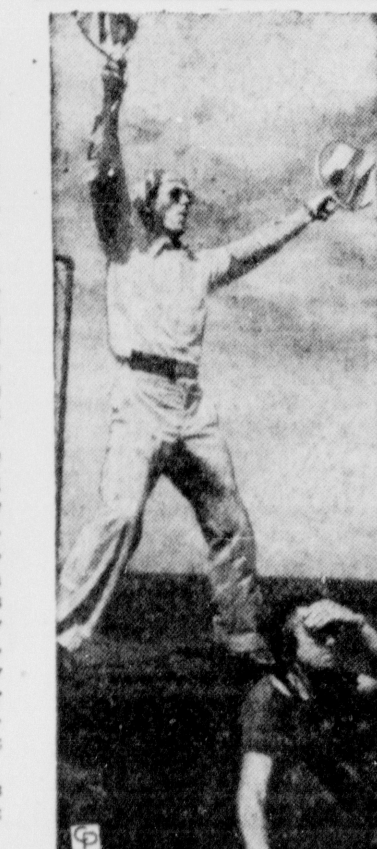

The unfortunate internal situation in the department of State which contributed to the resignation of Mr. Welles need not be reviewed except to comment that the so-called differences of opinion on major policies, such as on our attitude toward Russia, are largely imaginary because it is well known that not a single step of significance in the conduct of foreign policy has been taken without the knowledge and full approval of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Welles has doubtless been ambitious to succeed Secretary Hull, believing that the latter might retire because of age. Always, when an undersecretary is thinking of succeeding his chief, cliques and groups form inside a department and friction arises.

Usefulness Unimpaired

Cordell Hull is one of the truly great secretaries of state and, like his colleague, Secretary of War Stimson, his usefulness has not been impaired by his advancing years. Indeed, his vigor and tenacious clinging to the fundamentals of American policy in its relations with foreign governments have made his record of the last decade a remarkable and enviable one. He is respected abroad and at home. He now will need in place of Mr. Welles an active administrator as under-secretary, and a career diplomat like Norman Armour, American ambassador to Argentina, who has had wide experience and has an especially pleasing personality.

Disagreements over World Police Plan Are Regarded As Sufficient To Kill It

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—Trouble is rearing again on the international police force idea.

Senator Hatch construes the Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill bill (which Vice President Wallace endorsed) as calling for an international police force acting under orders of an international body. Powerful Foreign Relations Chairman Connally says there can be no such force, and no such surrender of sovereignty.

The man whose views count more, State Secretary Hull, has announced only that the "means" of international action to keep the peace is being discussed, (which may be significant in view of the fact that his now resigned assistant, Mr. Welles, promised an international police force.)

Facts Are Analyzed

Let us sift the argument for facts, and analyze the residue. Fact number 1 is that term "international police force" is obviously a misnomer. What everyone means is not international policemen sauntering around the world with night sticks, but an international army and navy ready to do battle. The difference between a policeman and an international dive bomber measures the extent in which the discussion has been deceivingly entitled.

When you call the argument by its right name, you also can measure accurately the extent to which some sort of super world organization would control the armed might of the world and thus completely destroy all the national sovereignties of all nations.

Offhand, I would say that even if we wanted this, Russia would never accept it, and I doubt if Britain would. The idea of an international police force to run Russia must make Stalin laugh.

In too many cases, however, they are trading short-term financial and mental satisfaction for long-term insecurity.

The nation at war which loses sight of the vast requirements for a reservoir of educated and trained youth to take their places of responsibility in a world at peace is gambling on winning the war, but losing the battle for its rightful place in a world in which the emphasis will be not upon killing men but upon a richer, fuller life for all men.

If we are short sighted, if we encourage beyond the requirements of absolute necessity the employment of young people whose education will suffer as a result, we are increasing America's postwar problems, both from the standpoint of national welfare, as well as from the standpoint of their individual welfare.

Young people who have given up "the three R's" to seek their fortunes, no matter how lofty their motives, and their employers as well, have an obligation to their Nation as well as to themselves. They must think in terms of the future, rather than exclusively in terms of the present. May they consider seriously before they sever for all time their educational ties. May they be able to see the forest, as well as the tree.

The day is short, the work is much.—BEN SYRA.

Formula on Peace Is Expected This Week in House

By MARK SULLIVAN

This week the House of Representatives will act upon the country's postwar foreign policy. The House's action will be official—it will formally express the opinion of a branch of Congress. Being official, this coming House action is to be distinguished from the scores of proposals volunteered by all sorts of persons and groups.

The proposals having official standing are three. One is the resolution to be acted upon by the House the coming week. Another is a resolution which the Senate will act upon later. Third is the rather surprising position taken by the president in his message to Congress last week.

First, the House. The resolution to be acted upon by the House this week is brief and limited. It would put the House on record as favoring "appropriate international machinery" to maintain peace, and "participation by the United States therein."

These words are general. They omit all controversial details, such as use of force to maintain peace. Unless the House is willing to pass this resolution, it will hardly pass any. Defeat of this resolution would put the House in the position of favoring complete isolation. That is not expected. What the House does—whether it passes the resolution and by what majority; whether amendments will be proposed and what the House does about them—all this will be watched by the country.

It will be watched also—with especial keenness—by foreign governments. For foreign governments know that the measure of what the United States will do about postwar international agreements is the measure of what Congress is willing to endorse. The action of the House will be interpreted as an index of American public opinion. For the body has just reassembled after a two months recess, in which all had opportunity to learn the opinions of their constituents.

Initiative Is Proposed

Next, the Senate. Among several proposals in the Senate, one is outstanding—the one introduced jointly by a Republican and a Democrat—a senator sometimes called the Ball resolution. While this is still in the Foreign Relations committee, it is practically certain to be acted upon, and to be the one about which the Senate debate will center.

This Senate resolution goes much farther than the House one. It calls upon the United States to "take the initiative"—these words are themselves far-reaching. We are to take the initiative in forming a "permanent organization of the United Nations." This Senate resolution brings up the hotly argued factor of force, an international army or police force. It would have the United Nations maintain a "military force" and suppress . . . any future attempt at military aggression by any nation."

Finally, the president's position. If Mr. Roosevelt's message to Congress last week had not dealt so extensively with the war, and if the country had not been so intent upon dramatic actions of our armed forces in Italy—that portion of Mr. Roosevelt's message dealing with postwar would have been recognized as surprising. Surprising, that is, in its mildness, its so-to-speak newness. Hardly at all—if indeed at all—did Mr. Roosevelt recommend any formal international arrangement whatever. His words were:

Words Fall Short

"We seek a national co-operation with other nations toward the end that world aggression be ended, and that fair international relationships be established on a permanent basis. The policy of the good neighbor has shown such success in the hemisphere of the Americas that its extension to the whole world seems to be the logical next step."

That position is materially short of what has been commonly attributed to the president. The "good neighbor" policy is hardly an "international organization" or an "international machinery." It is largely a course of conduct, an attitude of nations toward each other. Such a proposal will arouse no controversy. Mr. Roosevelt may intend this to be merely a "logical next step" to be followed by something more formal.

In thus limiting his present position, Mr. Roosevelt may intend to let public opinion, and sentiment in Congress, develop what it will. By such a course, Mr. Roosevelt would avoid what President Wilson brought upon himself when he went far out in front to take the initiative in forming the League of Nations.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

As a guide to farmers in planning their production program for next year, the War Food Administration has announced that the price of good to choice butcher 200-240 pounds hogs would be supported at $12.50 a hundred, Chicago basis, for the period October 1, 1944, to March 31, 1945. This compares with the support price of $13.75 a hundred in effect until September 30, 1944 for hogs weighing 200 to 270 pounds.

Appointment of Ural G. Bee as assistant animal husbandry specialist in the University of Maryland extension service is announced by Dr. T. B. Symons, director. He is already on the job and is helping stockmen with the many problems incident to increased livestock production under limited feed supplies and other wartime conditions.

Fine fall weather which usually prevails in Maryland is a good time to repair the laying house roof so that the house will provide the birds with comfortable conditions throughout the winter. Dr. Morley A. Jull, of the University of Maryland poultry department, reminds

A farmer, writing of contour cultivation, said: "A curved line is the shortest route to victory." Now is the time for farmers to start planning the contouring and other conservation work that will help America meet its 1944 war crop goals, and bring victory nearer.

Preparedness Best

If Senator Hatch and the others in that school want to carry the victory over into the peace, they will primarily insist that we maintain our superior army, air force and navy, and keep our production lines ready and open, so we will never be

Formula on Peace Is Expected This Week in House

By MARK SULLIVAN

This week the House of Representatives will act upon the country's postwar foreign policy. The House's action will be official—it will formally express the opinion of a branch of Congress. Being official, this coming House action is to be distinguished from the scores of proposals volunteered by all sorts of persons and groups.

The proposals having official standing are three. One is the resolution to be acted upon by the House the coming week. Another is a resolution which the Senate will act upon later. Third is the rather surprising position taken by the president in his message to Congress last week.

First, the House. The resolution to be acted upon by the House this week is brief and limited. It would put the House on record as favoring "appropriate international machinery" to maintain peace, and "participation by the United States therein."

These words are general. They omit all controversial details, such as use of force to maintain peace. Unless the House is willing to pass this resolution, it will hardly pass any. Defeat of this resolution would put the House in the position of favoring complete isolation. That is not expected. What the House does—whether it passes the resolution and by what majority; whether amendments will be proposed and what the House does about them—all this will be watched by the country.

It will be watched also—with especial keenness—by foreign governments. For foreign governments know that the measure of what the United States will do about postwar international agreements is the measure of what Congress is willing to endorse. The action of the House will be interpreted as an index of American public opinion. For the body has just reassembled after a two months recess, in which all had opportunity to learn the opinions of their constituents.

Initiative Is Proposed

Burke Predicts Employment Gain At Kelly Plant

Says There Are Fewer Jobs for Women in Tire Production

Re-employment at the Kelly plant will rise steadily "after we are well on our way to tire making," Edward S. Burke, president, said yesterday when interviewed on "This Woman's Army" radio program sponsored by the WAC recruiting unit here.

When the Kelly plant was converted to the production of ammunition for the war effort, Burke said many women had never worked in industry before, but with good luck and hard work, we managed to get our women to get the hang of things.

As ordnance workers, women insured, gauged and operated automatic machines, work they could do without taking them too much physically, Burke pointed out, and work they could do "equally as well as men."

A Man's Job

In tire making, however, Burke explained, "we do not have automatic machines to handle all operations. Handling heavy tire molds is definitely a man's job."

Burke pointed out that there was little "red tape" involved in Washington in securing permission to convert the plant to the manufacture of tires and declared "about October 1, we expect to stop making ammunition and start on tires."

Asked about the problem of conversion as it affects Cumberland women, Burke replied "after we are well on our way to tire making, re-employment will rise steadily. However, tire making is a skilled job; therefore, there will be less jobs for women."

Specialized work women receive in the army, Burke said he believes, "is one of the greatest benefits to be derived from joining a woman's military service."

Skilled Training Needed

"The advantage of specialized training will be of tremendous value after this war, for with the problem of rebuilding our postwar world will come a call for skilled workers. For instance, the training that women are receiving in the WAC organization in the way of communications, medical work, photography, meteorological work, aircraft mechanics, motor vehicle mechanics, administrative work and food supervision will certainly be classed as skilled training. I can safely say that our feminine population, with such training, will not be without jobs after the war."

Burke pointed out, however, that "in fairness to all the women's services, the WAC's, the WAVES, the SPARs and the Marines, I think anyone of these services for our women has a great deal to offer."

25 SOLDIERS DIE IN PLANE CRASH

MAXTON, N. C., Sept. 20 (AP)—Twenty-five soldiers died this morning in the crash of an army transport plane on the Laurinburg-Maxton army air base field two miles from here, the Public Relations Office announced.

The big ship, making a routine flight, burned after it struck earth. "Names of those killed will be available for release after next of kin have been notified," the PRO said.

No other details of the crash were made available beyond an announcement that a board of inquiry had been appointed.

Officers said it was the first aircraft fatality at the field which has been in operation more than a year. The base is an installation of the First Troop Carrier Command, under command of Col. V. A. Pitts.

O'Connor Claims One Pig from Nebraska

ANNAPOLIS, Sept. 20 (AP)—Governor O'Connor put in an advance claim on one corn-fed Nebraska hog today.

He sent a telegram to Gov. Dwight Griswold, of Nebraska, reminding him of their wager on the final results of war bond purchases in the two states and said he was "happy to advise that Maryland today became the first state in the country to exceed the Third War Loan quota."

The message was "an advance notice" to be ready to deliver the hog, O'Connor said, adding "trust your state will make splendid showing but not so good as to outdistance Maryland."

O'Connor put up a barrel of Chesapeake oysters against Griswold's hog.

zation strong enough to establish and maintain a lasting peace. The terse declaration was qualified to assure that Congress will have the right to review any peacemaking arrangement.

Marshall's stand, as developed during more than three hours of questioning, is that the army must have 700,000 men, including 300,000 replacements, by January 1. If that means the drafting of fathers, then fathers ought to come in. If young, qualified men can be obtained elsewhere, he has no objection.

But Marshall said over and over again it would be "dangerous" to assume that the army's strength could be reduced below the 7,000,000 goal set for January 1.

"If our quotas are cut," he said, "some of our planned divisions would not sail in the fall of 1944. We would be accepting that hazard. You'd be speculating on an early termination of the war and that would be dangerous."

"Overtraining" Is Denied

"Certainly," he declared, "if you cut us now, we suffer a much greater loss than we anticipate from the Germans and the Japs."

The chief of staff conceded that there had been delays in getting fighting divisions overseas, but denied that any troops are "over-trained" in this country.

The principal difficulty, he said, was an unexpectedly large demand for special troops. Some divisions, he said, were "taken to pieces" to furnish engineer, signal corps, quarter-master, port occupation and other special units. This delayed shipping those divisions until replacements could be trained, he said.

King insisted that while there might be some readjustments from time to time in the number and nature of ships to be built for the navy, there was "no intention of manning naval vessels just to be manning them."

Laguardia told the committee that further inroads by the draft into the ranks of municipal police and fire organizations might bring a "breakdown in local government."

Wheeler told reporters later he still is not convinced that it is necessary to call fathers and that he would demand action on his bill as soon as Marshall's testimony is printed and available to members.

Marshall told the committee there are 2,500,000 army personnel overseas and the army expects to have 5,000,000 abroad by the end of 1944.

"If we had the ships available and the port facilities, we'd sail the whole 5,000,000 at once," he added.

menting the sale of E bonds. Widespread purchase of the E series, he said, would achieve the second important purpose of the drive, removal of dollars from inflationary channels.

Miles reported that Treasury department figures showed that the percentage of individual bond sales in Maryland's quota, as of last Thursday, was thirty-three per cent, compared with twenty-eight per cent for the country as a whole.

The committee in charge of the Third War Loan in the state planned to stage three parades and a series of other ceremonies this week to keep the present campaign fervor at its high peak.

One parade will be held tomorrow, Police Department day, and will be followed by ceremonies at the court house plaza on Wednesday. Elks' Club day will be marked from 12 to 2 p. m. and from 8 to 10 p. m. in the plaza.

A premier of the motion picture "Salute To The Marines" was scheduled for Wednesday night with tickets available to purchasers of a $25 or greater bond.

"Autopilot"

He said the autopilot was responsible for reduced time on bombing missions, better co-ordination of bombardier-pilot teams, increasing the efficiency of the missions, and a reduction in pilot fatigue.

Development of the device was begun when material command officials at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, foresaw a need for a modified instrument capable of controlling accurately aircraft on high-altitude precision bombing missions, Wilson said.

It was accepted by the army airforce in October, 1941, and for months was standard equipment on American heavy bombers and some types of bomber-trainer planes.

To illustrate its efficiency, Wilson cited the case of a Fortress cut almost in two by a Messerschmitt 109. The pilot's manual control cables connecting to elevators and rudder were severed, but the ship was flown home safely "because the control surface motors of the electronic system were located far in the tail," and were undamaged.

second largest port in the shadow of Mt. Vesuvius already were firmly commanded by the Allies who seized the guardian islands of Capri, Ischia and Procida on either side of the bay last week.

American 155-MM "Long Toms" of African and Sicilian fame could now lob shells into bomb-torn Naples which Gen. Clark has said is his first objective.

"The Fifth army continues to extend its bridgehead against decreasing enemy resistance," the Allied communique said. "Reinforcements continue to arrive. The Eighth army continues to advance from the North."

Casualties of the Fifth army in the violent beach battle below Salerno were smaller than at first feared, headquarters indicated. Losses were reported light compared with those inflicted.

(The Berlin radio said Allied forces in the Salerno area had been reinforced by three additional divisions including two American, the Eighty-second airborne division and the Third Infantry division. The first Canadian division also has been placed under Gen. Clark's command, it said.

(The German communique reported the evacuation of Sardinia "according to orders and undisturbed by the enemy." The bulletin told of "abortive" British attacks in the Salerno area and said "farther to the east, the enemy is following up our movements only hesitatingly."

Indications were that the beaten Germans were moving back to take up new defensive positions. The German airforce remained the weakest arm of the enemy war machine. Allied aircraft virtually were unopposed on all sectors.

Sardinia has ten or so airfields within closer range of Central and Northern Italy and Southern France. An Allied spokesman said probably little use would be made immediately of Sardinia because chief operations are on the mainland.

Northern Sardinia lies 150 miles west of Rome and only seven miles across the Strait of Bonifacio from Corsica.

News was scarce from Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army which had swept 250 miles of Southern Italy to effect a junction with Clark.

Considerable snarled traffic was chopped to pieces at a junction of four roads twelve miles northeast of Eboli. A concentrated attack was made on Pescopagano and its road. Heavy RAF night raiders hammered a highway bridge at Benevento which is the long crossing of the Calore river. The rail junction of Capua and freight yards in the Naples suburbs were other targets. operation has been French. The control of the island would give the Allies one of the greatest air prizes in the Mediterranean theater, for from Corsica, long-range fighter planes could sweep the Po valley, held by Nazi field Marshal Erwin Rommel, weeks and perhaps months before Allied ground forces could battle their way up the Italian boot to come close enough for direct action.

French Morale at Stake

It is also within easy bombing range of Southern France — and long fighter range.

The operation is of tremendous importance to French morale. The French had felt they were left out of the Italian fighting while they wanted to do something on their own.

It was understood that in the first engagement, the French had ambushed a German column in the island's mountains and wiped out some 300 Nazis.

"Immediately after news of the Italian armistice became known French Corsican patriots took up the fight against the Germans," the French high command said in a communique.

"French commandos were immediately landed to back up the patriots."

"Events have taken a favorable turn."

The communique was signed by Gen. Henri Giraud, commander in chief of French forces.

er of such name—who put themselves at their command."

"We are co-operating side by side with the Anglo-Americans who are now accepting our assistance in the task of driving the Germans from the country," he continued.

Italians were advised to use the terrible weapon of guerrilla warfare "when outnumbered, and to escape the country, cut communications, blow up bridges and dumps, attack isolated men and equipment and, above all, do not give up, do not lose heart—persist."

The marshal said that when the armistice of Sept. 3 was concluded "it was our intention to lay down our arms and abstain entirely from acts of hostility against anybody."

"Even after the Germans began to attack us we were patient and did not fight back, hoping these attacks were only isolated incidents and not the result of a premeditated plan of aggression against us. Soon, however, we realized that whole German divisions were attacking our troops in Italy and outside Italy, were forcibly occupying our cities, harbors and airbases, were pillaging our stores and the possessions of our citizens, while the German air force was bombing our ships."

"Out with the Germans!" Badoglio exclaimed after declaring Germany had had "the impudence to set up a puppet government which purports to represent the soul and honor of Italy, whereas it only represents a slight minority enslaved to Germany."

Badoglio referred to partnership of the Americans, British and Italians in the last World war and declared the Allies "did not hesitate to state their ultimate aim is the rebirth of a strong and united Italy" and asserted "they will not withdraw their help from us when the time comes to repair the havoc of war."

Although Italians are reported to have fought with the Germans in many parts of the peninsula in spontaneous outbursts, this was the first official instruction for them to take up arms, either against the Germans or fellow Italians who remain loyal to Hitler.

In his original instructions upon announcing the armistice on Sept. 8, Badoglio had ordered his countrymen to cease fighting against Americans and British and to resist only if attacked from any other quarter.

From across the aisle, Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich.), outspoken administration critic and prewar non-interventionist, scoffed at McCormack's statements as "only a dream."

Applause from Galleries

From the galleries packed with civilians and servicemen came a round of applause as Rep. Luther Johnson (D-Tex.), one of the House veterans, called the resolution "a pledge of July declaration" but a "pledge on the part of Congress to which ninety per cent of the American people would subscribe if it was put to a vote."

Just before the debate began, the Foreign Affairs committee in a last minute move wrote into the resolution a Republican - demanded amendment saying, in effect, that Congress has the power to approve or reject any international arrangement to preserve the peace.

The qualification was accepted by unanimous vote of the committee. It would require that "constitutional processes" be adhered to in setting up the international peace machinery.

Grace Baptist Missionary Group To Meet Wednesday

Will Be in Charge of Prayer Service To Be Held at 7:30 P.M.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Grace Baptist church will be in charge of the prayer service in observance of the "Season of Prayer for State Missions" at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening at the church.

A program including Scripture readings, singing, devotionals, the outline of the work of the various auxiliaries and three talks, "The Salt of the Earth," the "Light of the World," and "Brethren" will be given. The offering for the missions will also be taken.

Mrs. Matthew robb will preside at the service. Mrs. Frederick H. Strauburg is in charge of the program with Mrs. J. K. Trenton, leader of the Sunbeams; Mrs. Margaret Reynolds, the Junior Girls Auxiliary; Mrs. Charles Lester, the Intermediates; and Mrs. W. Randolph Keefe, Jr., the Royal Ambassadors.

Woman Marine Describes Life In the Corps

One of the most fascinating duties of a marine, which gives her the spirit of the corps, is the old marine tradition of "polishing the brass" ornaments and buttons in her uniform. Sgt. Rita Cox, who is here with the Wake Island trailer, says. The Women Marine Corps followed all the traditions of the United States Marine Corps, she added.

Sgt. Cox, who is twenty-five years old, is a graduate of Beverly Hills, Cal. high school, and majored in music at the University of California, Berkeley. For six years she worked for Robert Greer, who is now with the army air corps overseas, modeling exclusively for buyers and traveling from coast to coast twice a year.

After a six weeks course at Sunter college, New York City, Sgt. Cox was stationed in the public relations and recruiting office in Philadelphia, after which she was assigned to special duty in New York and later sent to Baltimore to the public relations and recruiting office, interspersed with the assignments she has been sent out with the Wake Island trailer.

In an interview last evening, Sgt. Cox said her hobbies are swimming, tennis and horseback riding, and she is hoping for an assignment soon to Camp Lejeune, New River, N. C., where the women's reserve have their own moving picture theater, and clubs for officers and enlisted personnel. The clubs have bowling alleys, swimming beaches, boating, tennis and instructors for each. There is also the regular hair-dressers at the training camp to make life easier. The only regulation for a marine's hairdo, Sgt. Cox said, is that the hair be cut one inch above the collar.

A glee club and dramatic club have been formed and a Women's Marine Corps Band of forty-three pieces is being formed under the direction of Capt. William F. Santelmann, the regular Marine Band leader.

When asked about a woman marine marrying, Sgt. Cox quoted Major Ruth Cheney Streeter, head of the women's corps, who said in a recent speech that women marines are allowed to marry marines or men in any other service irrespective of rank.

Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat

Bacon and Corn Make a Grand Casserole

In these days of shortages there are so many things to recommend this casserole dinner we hardly know where to start. It's timely for the corn season. It's quick and easy to fix. It spreads the flavor of only a half pound of bacon through a hearty meal for 4.

Since the bacon does double duty as a seasoning for the corn, replacing butter in this casserole—it's wise to get Armour's Star Bacon. It's a rich, mild bacon that is sugar-cured in its own juices, then slow-smoked over fragrant hickory and hardwood fires. It gives this casserole such a grand flavor your family will call for it often.

Place 2 cups of fresh or canned whole kernel corn in a casserole. Arrange slices of Star Bacon in a fan shape over the top of corn as illustrated. Bake in a 350° F. oven until the bacon is crisp and the corn is heated through and well seasoned with the bacon fat. Garnish with a mixture of chopped green pepper and pimiento. It makes 4 generous servings.

HERE'S HOW!

In Stores, Theatres, Commercial Establishments:

DAYTIME: Eliminate sign lighting, show window lighting not required for interior illumination, marquee lighting and lighting of outdoor business establishments.

AT NIGHT: Signs and show window lighting — reduce lamp wattage as much as practicable and shorten the burning period so as not to exceed 2 hours each evening. (Signs at places of public service, such as restaurants and transportation terminals, may burn longer, but should be turned off when the place is closed.) Lighting of marquees and outdoor business places to be reduced by maximum practicable amount and turned off entirely when places are closed, except for amount needed for protection.

AT ALL TIMES: Eliminate exterior decorative and ornamental lighting, non-essential showcase and non-essential interior lighting of all types. Reduce other interior lighting as much as practicable. Turn off all lights and appliances when not in use, and avoid unnecessary usage. Use less electricity in air conditioning by maintaining higher temperatures.

In the Home:

Turn off all lights and appliances when not actually needed. Conserve electricity in using refrigerator, radio, range, space heater and other electric equipment.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Downy Mildew on Grapes in Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY

If you have been puzzled by a mildew upon the stems and leaves of the grapes in your Victory garden, you may find that the vines are infected with "downy mildew," one of the worst fungus enemies of the grape.

Downy mildew affects the leaves and tender vines as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

and it also affects the grape berries. It causes loss through the total or partial destruction of the foliage, and through the stunting of the new shoots. In many areas this has been a season which has resulted in much downy mildew because the disease develops rapidly during wet, hot seasons.

If your grapes are affected with downy mildew, be prepared to spray them next spring with Bordeaux mixture. Several applications will control downy mildew, as well as other foliage diseases, provided spraying is begun before the blossoms open.

We hope this battle report gets to the front!

Here's where they make the "Boom!" This Gulf unit makes toluene. Toluene makes TNT. And TNT, when placed in a shell and fired from an American cannon, makes a loud "Boom!" that heralds the downfall of America's enemies.

Another Blow for Hitler and Tojo! This is a new Thermofor catalytic cracking unit built by Gulf... to turn out high octane aviation grade gasoline for Allied fighters and bombers. What's more, it makes feed stock for the synthetic rubber plants, too!

More power to the Air Forces! This new Houdry unit, recently completed by Gulf, produces another component of aviation fuel. It's helping U.S. and Allied forces bomb our enemies to "unconditional surrender."

NOT MANY DAYS from now the giant butadiene plant for making synthetic rubber at Port Neches, Texas, will be going full blast.

The story of this plant ought to make mighty cheerful reading for our fighting men.

For it's more than the story of a battle fought and won—the battle to get the rubber we must have to fight this War.

It's a cracking good illustration of how Americans at home are backing up Americans at the front. It shows how the folks at home can get together, and by drive, ingenuity, co-operation, and an incredible amount of plain hard work, take the toughest problems this War can hand out—and lick 'em to a standstill.

12 months ago, this butadiene plant... the biggest in the world... was on the drafting board. By the end of this year, it will be turning out synthetic rubber ingredients at the rate of 100,000 tons annually.

Certainly, the story of how five of the country's great oil companies worked as one to help design, build, and operate the Port Neches plant, is as heart-warming a tale as any that has come from the Home Front in this War.

But there are others

Besides producing the vast amount of oil needed for our mechanized forces, our Navy, our gigantic war industry and our essential civilian use, the oil industry has tackled—successfully—two huge additional jobs:

1. The production of high-octane gasoline for our young giant of an air force;
2. The production of toluene for explosives.

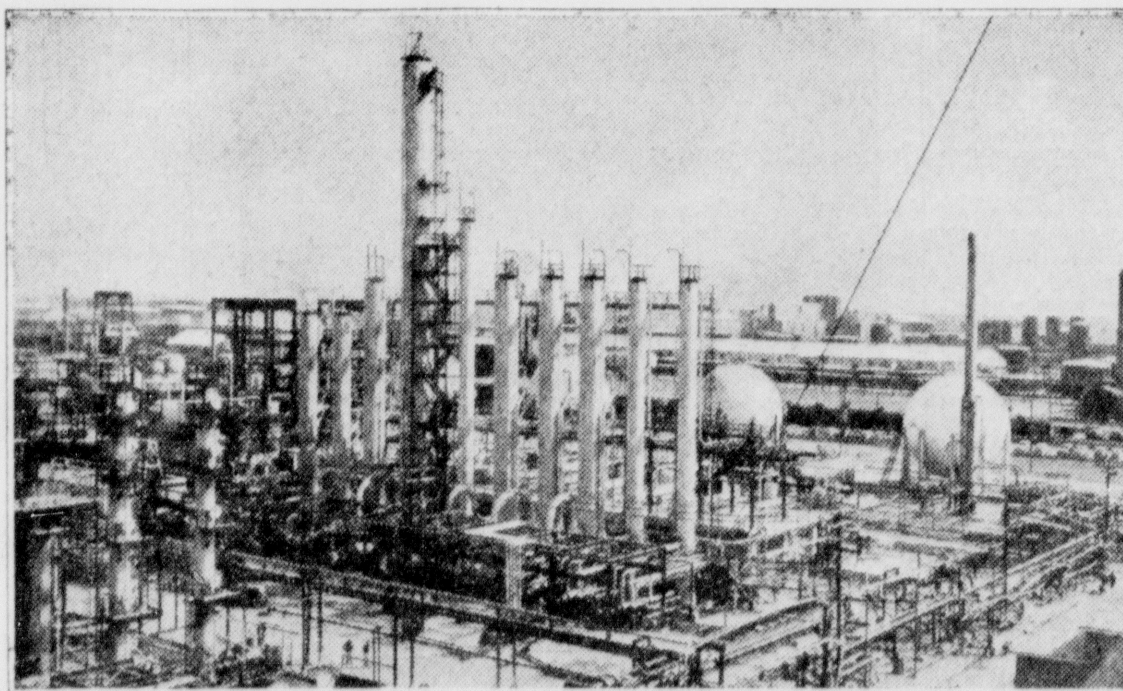

Supplying rubber for the wheels of our war machine—high-octane gasoline for its wings—explosives for its shells... can you think of three jobs more vital to victory?

As the Port Neches plant and the pictures on this page prove, all three jobs are being done—and well done. And for the part Gulf is privileged to play in the doing of them, we are both thankful and proud.

Potomac State Faculty Will Hold Reception

President Church Says 157 Are Enrolled in Keyser School

KEYSER, Sept. 20—President E. E. Church reports one hundred fifty seven students enrolled in Potomac State school. Enrollment of freshmen began Sunday, September 12, and to date one hundred and five first year students have enrolled. From Sunday to Wednesday was given over to the enrollment and classification of freshmen. Tests, including English, psychology and physical education, were given.

One evening was devoted to a "student mix." On Wednesday evening there was a theater party, all students being guests of Newton B. Carskadon local theater manager.

Thursday was sophomore registration day and fifty-seven enrolled. By Friday all classes were meeting for regular work. Of the one hundred fifty-seven enrolled, one hundred twelve are women and fifty-two are men.

Owing to war conditions the school is operating with three less instructors than were employed last year. Even with that shortage, Dr. Church stated there will be no curtailment of curriculum, the work of the absent teachers being absorbed by those who remain.

Those who did not return are Dr. Thomas F. Marshall, Miss Mary C. Williams, Harold Jones and Challen O'Dell. The one new faculty member is Mrs. Ruth Manning who succeeded Miss Williams as dietitian. Mrs. Manning will also be dean of women, a position not filled last year.

On Tuesday evening the faculty members will be hosts at a student reception to be held in Reynolds hall.

Johnson Infant Dies

Nicola Suzanne Johnson, the six-weeks old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Johnson, Boston, Mass., died in Memorial hospital, Cumberland, early this morning. The child became ill shortly after birth and has been under treatment in Memorial hospital for the past two weeks.

The mother of the child is the former Mary Garlitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Z. Garlitz of Keyser. The father is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. John Johnson of Los Angeles, California. The parents and all four grandparents survive.

Forfeits Bond

Mrs. Stella Hanna was placed in county jail Saturday night, charged with striking an employee of Hinmills restaurant with a tonic bottle. Sunday morning she was released after posting 25 bond for her appearance at police court this morning. She failed to appear and forfeited the bond.

Employees of the restaurant told Chief John Hensen that Mrs. Hanna became noisy and abusive while in the restaurant and when asked to quiet down proceeded to strike the speaker with a tonic bottle.

Wilkie To Give GOP Complete Service If Party Adopts Liberal Platform

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP)—Wendell Wilkie said today that if the Republican party adopted a liberal platform in 1944 he would "give it my complete and undeviating service, whether as the convention's nominee or as a worker in the ranks."

"Will you be available for the Republican nomination for president in 1944?"

Elaborating on his answer, Wilkie said:

"I see within a liberal Republican party the possibility of the formation of a real team, the members of which can work together for the accomplishment of common purposes," Wilkie wrote. "No such team exists in the Democratic party at the present time, nor can it exist in 1944."

"The Democratic party is torn asunder by conflicting forces. x x x There is emerging a new spirit in our party, a spirit of progress and determination x x x. The new spirit, I believe, is right now building a party fit to govern, a party that knows itself and its objectives. If those objectives are the liberal ones I believe them to be, I want to be on the team."

A liberal platform, Wilkie said, must include "five indispensable planks" which he said were (1),

"while Democratic government rests on majority rule, the essence of freedom is the protection of minorities," (2) "efficient, well-managed and economical administration," (3) "a rebirth of enterprise—real enterprise," (4) extension of social security and absolute guarantees against unemployment and want, (5) a new foreign policy "by which we and other nations can assure our future safety and promote our mutual interests. The biggest job that faces the party right now is to crystallize its thinking on the form that our participation should take in the postwar world."

Wilkie said that it was necessary to distinguish between "enterprise and private ownership" and said "we must prevent the further misuse of the word 'enterprise' by those who wish merely to preserve their idle capital and their vested powers." "We must give the word a meaning for every American, whether big or little, and whether he owns his own business or not," he said.

"Workers on the production line are also enterprisers—or should have an opportunity to be."

He criticized the New Deal's pre-Pearl Harbor foreign policy, and said "the proficiency of the administration in foreign affairs is a myth that will have to be carefully examined by the people before November, 1944."

"You'll never reach Berlin," says he..

Imagine this goose-stepping Nazi prisoner giving me that! "What makes you think so?", says I

"YOUR HOME FRONT," he comes back... "your people at home are too soft and selfish to make sacrifices. And unless they buy you the guns and tanks and planes, your INVASION will be a slaughter."

"Listen Nazi," I snapped, "right now, my country is planning the 3rd War Loan—15 Billion dollars—to pay for this INVASION. They'll do it, too! I've got a family—mother, father, sisters and brothers, aunts and uncles. I've got friends that write to me regularly. They won't let me down. They're buying War Bonds now, but they'll buy extra Bonds this month."

"Fool," sneers this Nazi, "your Americans at home talk big—but they're more interested in luxuries than in your life. When it comes to sacrifice, that's your job—alone."

I walked away... I was seeing red.

But I thought I'd better speak to you, anyway. Just in case you might think they're kidding about this 3rd War Loan. They're not—that money will pay for INVASION equipment.

I understand that every American is asked to buy at least one extra $100 War Bond this month. But don't stop there—I know a lot of you can and will invest thousands—you've got to, to put it over. Buy War Bonds out of pay checks, dig the money out of the old sugar bowl or wherever it is—but for the luvva Mike, buy all you can! Over here, we know how important it is, and we're buying Bonds out of our pay. But we don't make much, so it's up to you at home, really.

It's a darned good investment, anyway. What else carries the backing of the whole United States Government behind it?

Well—I know you'll buy extra bonds—I just wanted to make sure you know how important it is to put everything you've got behind us.

Write soon, will you? And I'll drop you a line from Berlin, one of these days.

Yankees, Cards Have Uncertain Pitching Staffs

Aces of Both Clubs Lost Two Previous Series Starts

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP)—The day of great names on the mound in the World Series is temporarily past and the St. Louis Cardinals clash with the New York Yankees next month will be a struggle between two uncertain pitching staffs.

If Spud Chandler faces Mort Cooper in the opening game, as expected, both teams will be banking on hurlers who have never won and never finished in two previous starting chances in the annual classic.

A great deal has been said and written about the uncertainties of Cooper in World Series competition. He has won twenty and lost eight this year, pitched twenty-three complete games and six shutouts, and still there is a question about the propriety of Manager Bill Southworth leading off with him against the Yankees.

Chandler Lost Both Starts
This is because he was knocked out twice by New York in last year's series and because he also has failed twice against the American League in the mid-summer all-star games.

But many of Cooper's critics have overlooked the fact that Chandler has lost the only two series tussles he has started.

In 1941 against Brooklyn he allowed only one hit for four innings, but then he was himself out running the bases, trying to get from first to third on a single. In the fifth he issued two walks and three hits for two runs and in the sixth was derided with two on and none out.

Last year in the third game against the Cards he allowed only three hits in eight innings before being lifted for a pinch batter, but a walk and one hit was all the racing rebirds needed to score and Lefty Ernie White shut out the Yankees.

This year Chandler has won nineteen and lost four, pitched nineteen complete games and five shutouts to establish himself as the leading hurler in the American League. Yet he still must prove himself in the World Series, just as Cooper must.

Chandler is a certain starter in the first game, Cooper is the logical choice for the Cardinals. If he loses the Cards are no worse off than they were at the same point last year.

Cards Remember Beagley
Back of Cooper the Cardinals undoubtedly will choose among their lefties, Max Lanier, Brazle and Brecheen, for the other games. Brazle was brought up from Sacramento in mid-July after pitching forty consecutive scoreless innings in the Coast league and since entering the National League has won seven and lost one while pitching seven complete games and one shutout.

Remembering Johnny Beagley's two triumphs last year should make it possible for Southworth to choose a rookie starter without hesitation.

After Chandler, Joe McCarthy's obvious choice is big Ernie Bonham who won twenty-one games last season but failed in the series and who has been an in-an-outter this year with a record of 3-8. The other assignments lie between Hank Borowy, 2-9, and Rookie Charley Wensloff, 12-10.

Postwar Sports Boom Predicted

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Sept. 20 (AP)—A postwar boom in all sports, collegiate and professional, as a result of the navy's vast physical training program was predicted tonight by Lt. Comdr. Jack Meagher, former Auburn head coach and recently appointed physical director for the naval air station here.

Many boys who never before participated in organized sports of any kind are being conditioned in the navy's athletic program and many will enter college when the war is over," said Meagher, whose team upheld its "giant killer" role by administering the only defeat suffered all last season by the Georgia Rose bowl champions.

"Right now, we're getting a lot of high school boys who hadn't had time to get started with their athletic careers when the war came," Meagher added. "These boys are learning the value of self-discipline that supervised sports teaches and nearly all of them will go in for some kind of sport when they return to civilian life."

Meagher said it was regrettable that more colleges had not continued their athletic programs during the war. He said there is a definite need for athletically trained men in the service.

One of Baseball's First Curve-Ball Pitchers Dies at 87

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 20 (AP)—John Arthur Williams, 87, one of baseball's first pitchers to throw a curve and prove that it was no optical illusion, died today.

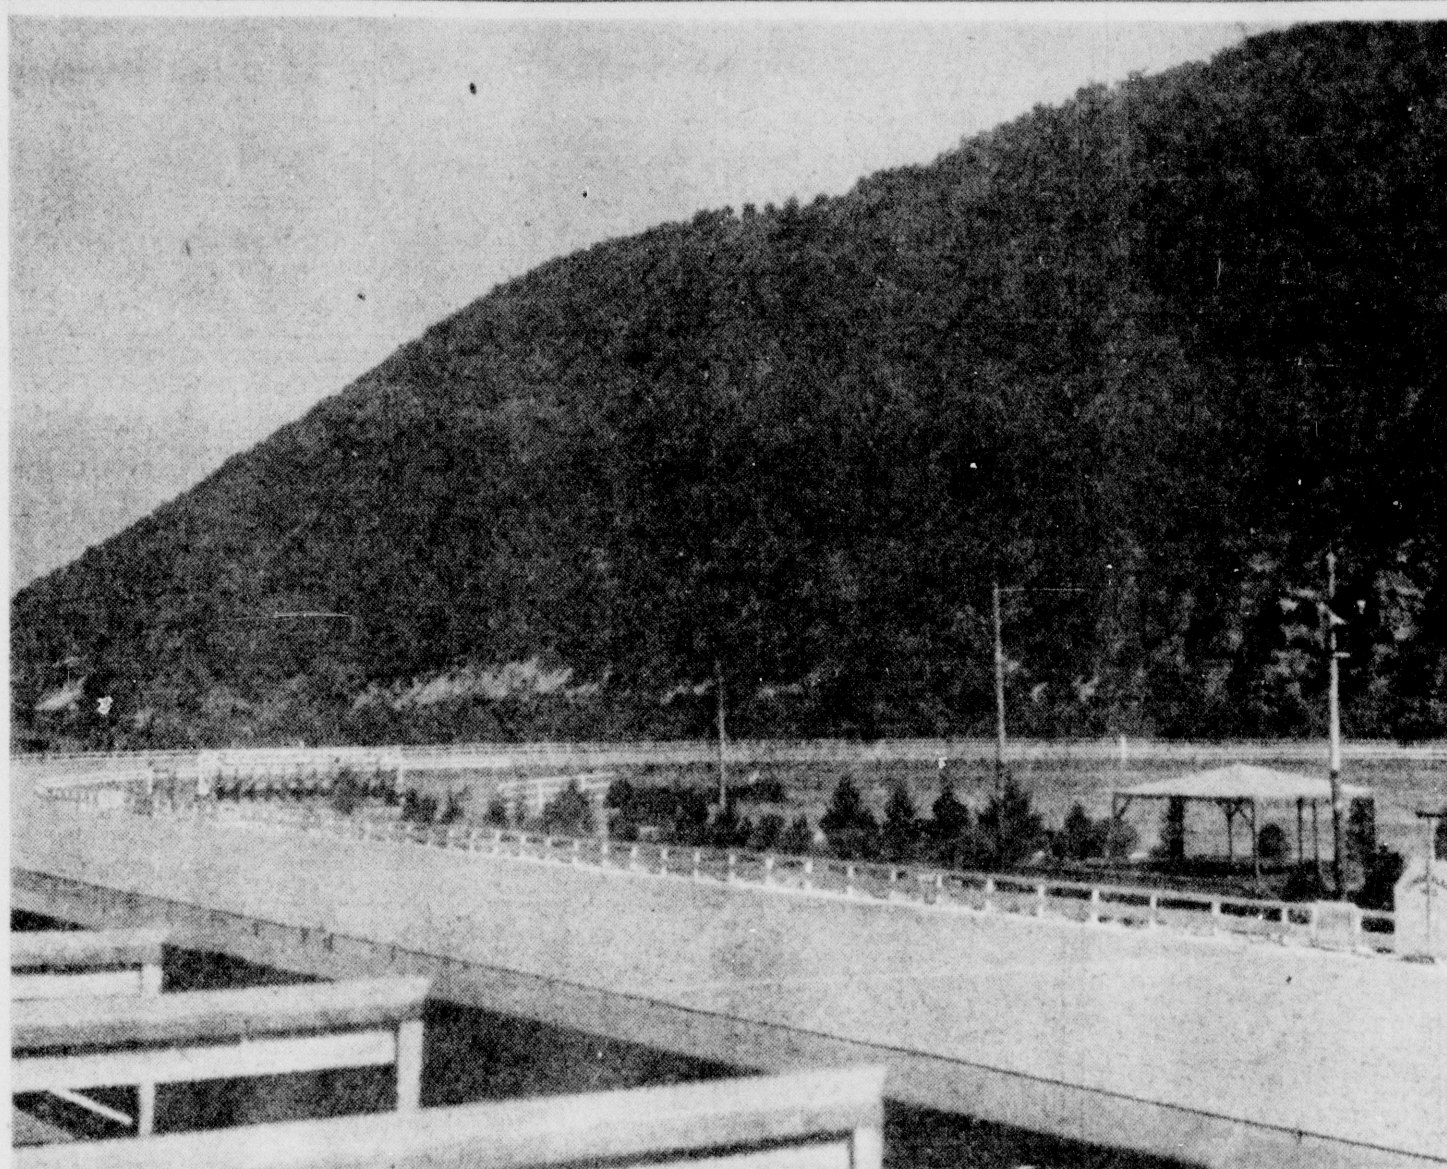

A battery mate of Connie Mack when the venerable manager of the Philadelphia Athletics played in his native East Brookfield, Williams demonstrated his "hook" at one time to doubting Amherst college professors.

Williams twirled for Lancaster, Pa., in the old Eastern League and also for Richmond, Va., and Fall River, Mass., in other leagues.

He received his training from Arthur Cummings, former Brooklyn star, who is generally credited with being the first man to make a ball break sharply from a straight course.

All-Around Star
E. E. Longworth, star pitcher for the Virginia Tech Gobblers last season, made a perfect grade in every subject during the spring quarter.

FAIRGO RACING STRIP READY FOR ACTION TOMORROW

The Cumberland Fair Association's Fairgo plant will look a little different tomorrow than it does in the above picture. Thousands of fans from Cumberland and vicinity are expected to converge on the local half-mile layout tomorrow afternoon when the invasion of the thoroughbreds gets under way. New equipment this year includes the Barr starting gate and E. R. Crowley's "Photochart" for finishes. The Barr gate, with ten stalls, is seventy-eight feet long and is similar to those used at larger tracks. It replaces the Purcell starting gate used here in recent years. Increased purses aggregating $24,500 will be distributed among horsemen during the first half of the ten-day program, according to the condition book issued by Race Secretary Eddie Brennan. The opening-day feature will be the Duncan R. Sloan Memorial, carrying a purse of $600 and a trophy offered by Jeffries Brothers, Frostburg.

American Troops Already Playing Ball in Sicily

Boys Themselves Apparently Solve Playing Field Problem

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP)—The government crossed up the sports fans a little in announcing that the major league all-star teams would tour in the Pacific war theater, as for some unknown reason it was taken for granted the teams would be sent in the other direction and would be hitting foul balls off Mussolini's chin.

It even was pointed out what a shame it would be to entertain the boys in the Mediterranean theater and neglect those in the Pacific, and it also was mentioned that the teams might have a hard time finding playing fields in North Africa and Sicily.

Well, we've learned that the boys themselves apparently have solved the playing field problem. We don't know whether or not they are using shell holes for bases and Mount Etna as a center field fence, but they nevertheless are playing baseball in Sicily right now.

Albert D. Groves, sports editor of the Findlay, Ohio, Republican-Courier, forwards a copy of a letter received from Sgt. Paul J. Frost, indicating our servicemen play baseball whenever and wherever they are, and include all the beefs and arguments common to the game in this country.

Soldier "All Wet"
The letter reads in part: "In a baseball game here in Sicily, a native son of Findlay, Ohio—one George C. Love—argued a play, saying that it was a Findlay rule."

"He was on first base. A fly was knocked to center field. He was standing about ten feet off first when the ball was caught. He then continued on to second. His argument was that he did not start running from where he stood until the ball was caught. Of course we ruled him out after throwing the ball to first."

"Being a Buckeye myself, I doubt the veracity of his statement that they play ball by those rules in Findlay."

"He still insists he is right." Naturally Love was all wet in his assumption, as if a base runner could stand where he was until a fly ball was caught and continue from there he might be able to make two bases on such a play, and it would be nothing to score from second on a sacrifice fly.

Easy for Engineers
But whether the boys are playing by three-old-cat rules or over-the-fence-is-out, the idea is that they are playing baseball, and will continue to do so if they have to mow down mountains to get a place level.

Meeting at Fairgo Will Launch Maryland's Fall Racing Season

Maryland's fall racing season, which has just recently been lengthened from thirty to forty days, will swing into action at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow, when the Cumberland Fair Association stages the first of its ten days' allotment of racing.

President Cliff White has done a remarkable job in getting things shipshape for tomorrow's opening. It wasn't until September 9 that the Maryland Racing Commission approved his third application for fall dates. Since then White has worked night and day lining up horses, procuring officials, dressing up the picturesque Fairgo plant and attending to the 100 other duties necessary to the opening of any race meeting.

It would not be stretching a point in saying that the thoroughbred colony slated to race here, is the finest since the sport was inaugurated in 1925. The same applies to the jockey's colony, therefore visitors are certain to witness thrilling sport daily, regardless of weather or track conditions.

Recent winners over the mile tracks of New Jersey, New York, New England, Maryland, Kentucky, Illinois and Ohio are occupying stalls. All fields will be limited to eight starters, this despite the fact that the track is five feet wider than Pimlico. Holding the fields to eight is just an effort to insure clearer and truer run races.

Totalizer wagering, as well as the ever popular daily double betting, will be offered visitors. The "double" will be on the first and second races.

The Harry M. Stevens Company, of New York, is in charge of concessions. All finishes will be photographed by the Jones electrical camera. It is expected that eight flat races will be run daily, this despite the fact there is a jumping course here.

Arnold Kirkland, leading winning apprentice rider during the recent fifty-day session at Garden State park; Buddy Root, who was topping the older boys until slightly injured; Carson Kirk, Danny Socca and Willie O'Ber, are some of the jockeys who will take in the ten-day race meeting.

enough for a diamond. We have an idea that the engineers, who can build roads and bridges while you wait, could iron out a ball field during their lunch hour. Those babies can do anything.

As this is written we have no idea just where in the Pacific area the all-star teams will play, but from the pictures we have seen of some of that territory the job of providing a playing field would be much more complex than it would be in the Mediterranean area, particularly North Africa where much of the terrain is as flat as the palm of your hand.

Naturally the Hawaiian Islands and Australia, should the all-stars go that far, wouldn't offer much of a problem, but some of those saron-publicized islands would be something else with their tangle of jungle growth and coconut throwing palm trees.

Anyway, wiser heads than ours probably have considered all the angles, and we hope the tour goes over with a wallop.

Cops Meet All-Stars
McIntyre's All-Stars and City Police toppers will meet in a Softball game this evening at 6 o'clock on the Campobello diamond.

Baseball Season, Near Finish, Still Has Lots of Life

Chief Fuss Will Be Pennant Party of New York Yankees

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP)—There isn't much left of this big league baseball season, but nevertheless there's still plenty of life in the old boy yet in the two weeks he'll be kicking around.

Naturally, the chief fuss he'll stir up will be the pennant party of the New York Yankees in the junior circuit—when, as and if.

And although the St. Louis Cardinals have already completed their pin-up festivities with the National League flag, the senior circuit has just as merry a stretch scramble, what with the Brooklyn Dodgers having to carry their fight into the other fellows' back yards to stay out of third place—to say nothing of fourth—the rest of the way.

Action Resumes Wednesday
All clubs take today and tomorrow off before opening the final invasion fling of the western American League teams in the east and the eastern National loop outfits in the west. And while they traveled to their new battlegrounds, the chief talk for all hands centered around what happened to the Yankees in Washington and to the Dodgers in the Polo Grounds over the weekend.

Both the Yanks and the Brooklyns explain, incidentally, that what happened to them should happen to Hitler, in part.

Given a chance to clinch the pennant against the American League's second-place set, the Bombers blew three straight to the Senators, saw their lead sliced to nine games, saw their ace, Spud Chandler, trampled soundly and wound up getting a two-hitter served to them by Milt Hefner.

Yanks Need Five Games
Now, there doesn't appear to be anything for the upturn thumpers to worry about, since they need only five games to clinch and have fourteen to play, starting with a four-game series with Detroit in the stadium Wednesday. But the way they were walloped in Sunday's double hit doesn't make those 13-20 series odds in their favor look very appetizing to the betting boys.

The Dodgers wind up with thirteen games in the east, and seven of these have a direct effect on just what share of the series pot they cut. These seven scuffles are with the Cincinnati Reds (four) and the Pittsburgh Pirates (three).

As they shoved off for their finale, the second-place Bums boasted only a one-game bulge over the Reds and two over Frankie Frisch's Bucs. So they're in a spot where even a collapse may drop them right down into fourth place. And the way the woeful New York Giants thumped them twice Sunday may be an indication that it's about time for the Brooklyn balloon to go up again.

Base Pilfering Champ Outdoes Ace of Catchers

Senators' George Case Comes Out Ahead of Yanks' Bill Dickey

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Who wins the swiftest of base thieves matches wits and ability with the ace of catchers?

The crime doctors probably won't like this, but the answer is that the base pilferer—Washington's George Case—comes out on top. He settled the question, at least for the time being in the opener of the New York-Washington doubleheader Sunday.

The situation was this: In a setting of a standing-room-only through, the Yankees had Spud Chandler, team ace and foremost American League pitcher on the mound, with the great Bill Dickey, famed for his deadshot pegs to second, behind the bat.

That game was tight, and the crowd was tense as Case reached first base. Everybody expected Case to steal, and the Yankees were determined to head him off.

Over to first, Chandler whipped the ball to hold Case close to the bag. Then Dickey, anticipating that Case would make a break on the first pitch, called for a pitch-out.

Sure enough, down Case went. The great Dickey, eager as a rookie to get that ball, appeared to go out and meet it. Dickey had a clear shot at second but he threw the ball into the dirt in front of Second Baseman Joe Gordon and Case was safe.

Case's feat gave him a tie with his own personal American League record of fifty-one steals, and demonstrated that he can reach his destination even when it's three-one-one, Dickey, Chandler, league's leading pitcher, and Gordon, tops among the second-sackers.

The Senators, with Case keeping Yankee pitchers on edge all afternoon, went on to win the twin-bill, 3 to 2, in ten innings, and 5 to 1.

Leo Durocher Denies Wife's Allegations

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 20 (AP)—Leo E. Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers baseball club, today entered a general denial to allegations of general indignities contained in the divorce suit of his wife, Mrs. Grace Durocher.
Dovey S. Godfrey, attorney for Durocher, entered the denial in circuit court here. Date for a hearing has not yet been set.
Mrs. Durocher filed suit for divorce Aug. 30. They were married in St. Louis Sept. 27, 1934.

Hope Will Resume Programs Tonight On Radio Chain

Back from Overseas, Comedian Will Start Another Season

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—If anything, this is Bob Hope day on the radio. For the comedian, freshly back from entertaining the boys overseas, is to resume for another season on NBC at 10 p. m. Tuesday. In doing so he will have his friend Bing Crosby as the special guest.

The Third War Loan network cavalcade, in which the networks are directing a day's schedule each to pushing the bond sales in addition to their other activities, switches to CBS. MBS did its share last Saturday and Blue on Sunday, with NBC to join in next Sunday. All through the day and night from 8 a. m. to 1 a. m., the CBS chain will have both regular and special programs concentrating in the bonds, augmented by numerous special announcements.

Convention Reports

Broadcasts from the American Legion convention at Omaha start on Tuesday. Those announced in advance: NBC 1:30 p. m. Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff; Blue 1:45 Mrs. Ruth Mathebat, auxiliary president; CBS 10:30 p. m. Col. Louis Johnson.

When the American forum on MBS at 8 has a discussion of "Post-war Health Planning," the panel will include Henry J. Kaiser, with five others participating. The Footlight Front, described as the "first actuality broadcast to originate from Whitehorse in Yukon territory and the occasion of the Canadian premiere of 'This Is the Army,' is scheduled for MBS at 10:45.

Added to the American Legion broadcasts is an MBS transmission at 11:15 a. m. of Eric Johnston's talk on "Peace Through Vigilance."

Some Early Programs

NBC—12 noon Words and Music; 2 p. m. Serial Guiding Light; CBS—9:45 a. m. Landt trio; 1:45 p. m. Goldbergs; 4:30 Perry Como sings; Blue—10:45 a. m. Love Problems; 12:30 p. m. Farm and Home program; 2:15 p. m. Mystery Chef; 4 Blue Prolis music.

MBS—11:30 a. m. Happy Joe and Ralph; 2:30 p. m. Nashville Varieties; 4:30 p. m. Pull Speed Ahead.

"The Authority on Authorities"

BREAK LESSER RULES
ONE SUPPOSED rule of defensive play against a No Trump contract is to return your partner's suit. Another rule of general defense is to lead up to weakness in the dummy. Neither of these is as important a rule as to make the play which seems best calculated to defeat the contract. Doing that may necessitate your departing from the two rules stated, which are lesser ones. There are times even when the main rule of defense—to beat the contract—calls upon you to lead up to the dummy's best suit.

Father Hewitt Is Passenger on Jap Exchange Ship

Parents Advised Interned Manchukuo Missionary Sailed Sept. 14

A Catholic missionary from Cumberland who has been interned in Shanghai, China, by the Japanese since Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941, is among the 1,500 Americans aboard the Japanese exchange ship Tei Maru, which sailed September 14 from Yokohama for the port of Mormogao in Portuguese India, according to word received here by his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Hewitt, of 241 New Hampshire avenue, have been advised by the Maryknoll Society, Maryknoll, N. Y., that their son, the Rev. Leo Warner Hewitt, is a passenger on the exchange ship expected to arrive at the port on the west coast of India about the middle of October.

Father Hewitt, a native of Cumberland, has been a missionary in Manchukuo, formerly Manchuria, since 1930, having established the Sacred Heart church at Dairen. He returned to this country for a year's vacation in 1938 and upon his return to the Orient he managed to leave Italy just at the time Germany and Italy became Axis partners.

First word that his son was interned in Shanghai was received by Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt from the Swedish Red Cross.

The War department has advised the Maryknoll Society that Father Hewitt and other passengers of the exchange ship are expected to arrive in this country about November 15.

The exchange liner Gripsholm sailed from New York September 2 with 1,330 Japanese civilians who are being repatriated, and will pick up 1,730 more at Rio de Janeiro. They are to be exchanged at Mormogao for approximately 1,250 United States citizens and 250 nationals of the other American republics and Canada. The first such exchange with Japan took place more than a year ago at Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa.

Father Hewitt, who was 41 in August, is the first missionary from St. Mary's parish, this city, after being graduated from St. Mary's school, Oldtown road, he studied for the priesthood at Maryknoll Prep, Clark Summit, Pa., and Maryknoll, N. Y. He is a brother of Thomas Hewitt, seaman's cook, stationed at New Orleans, La., and Lawrence A. Hewitt, who is employed at the local B. & O. railroad accounting office.

Olen Hyde Is Held Under $1000 Bond On Rape Charge

Olen Hyde, Shaft, was held for grand jury action under $1,000 bond on a charge of raping a nine-year-old girl after he waived a hearing before Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., in trial magistrates court Saturday.

Hyde was arrested by Sgt. Harold C. Carl and Trooper First Class A. M. Spioch on a complaint that he attacked the child in a shed near his home September 9, police said.

Paul A. Colbert, 17 Oak street, was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail by Magistrate Frank A. Perdue in trial magistrates court yesterday on a charge of assaulting Mary Powell, a neighbor.

Magistrate Perdue suspended sentence on condition that Colbert keep the peace and paroled Colbert for one year. Colbert was fined $5 June 30 for assaulting Edith Colbert, according to the docket in trial magistrates court.

A suspended sentence was given to Roger G. Cooling, Route 36, Barton, by Magistrate Bruce in trial magistrates court Saturday on a charge of passing when the way ahead was not clear.

Five Qualify in Exams For City Positions

The board of civil service commissioners reported to the mayor and city council yesterday that as a result of last week's examination, only one man, Harry H. Jones, is eligible for appointment as a policeman and four, Ervin W. Lease, Albert W. VanMeter, James L. Gerner and Charles P. Neus, are eligible for fire department appointments.

The council agreed to give $100 to the Allegheny County League for crippled children as a membership donation and to provide $50 for the purchase of cigarettes for those in the armed forces.

An order to increase the salary of Jesse Yates $5 per month for servicing city cars was also approved.

Four Births Reported

Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Crable, 919 Rhade's lane, announce the birth of a daughter at home yesterday morning.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. W. Durwood Wolford, 527 Greene street, early Monday morning in Allegheny hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin E. Mamont, Westernport, announce the birth of a daughter yesterday morning in Memorial hospital.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Stoner Zembower, Route 4, Bedford, Pa., yesterday morning in Allegheny hospital.

SPARS Recruiting Drive Opens Here

Yeoman Phyllis Scott Interviews 12 on First Day at USES Office

The campaign to sign up recruits for the United States Coast Guard Reserve, better known as the SPARS, got under way here yesterday with the arrival of Phyllis D. Scott, yeoman second class, who has established headquarters in the office of the United States Employment Service.

Miss Scott interviewed twelve young women between noon and 5 p. m., yesterday following her arrival from Baltimore. She will remain here for one week and may be seen daily from 8:30 to 5 p. m. Those who are unable to reach her at the USES office may contact her at the Port Cumberland hotel.

"The SPARS offer women an opportunity to do more than talk about the war," the recruiting officer remarked.

The SPARS is an organization of women whose job is to replace Coast Guard men at shore stations.

"The SPARS can use you if you have worked in an office as typist, secretary, operator or business machines, filing clerk or bookkeeper and if you have sold merchandise, if you know anything about radio, telegraphy, photography and if you are mechanically inclined.

Women twenty to thirty-six years are eligible for the SPARS.

Yeoman Scott is a native of Grand Forks, N. D., and her husband is A. L. Scott, storekeeper first class, of the United States Navy.

M. F. O'Neill Files Answer to News Dealer's Complaint

Denies that Edward Clark Ever Owned North Centre Street Stand

Denial that Edward J. Clark, Jr., has ever owned the Sunday newspaper stand in front of St. Patrick's church on North Centre street was made by Michael F. O'Neill in an answer filed yesterday in circuit court to the bill of complaint docketed recently by Clark against Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman for allegedly ousting him from the business site and handing it over to O'Neill.

O'Neill, who was granted permission to intervene as party defendant on the contention that his property rights and business operations would be affected by the outcome of the proceedings, also declared that he, himself, has owned and operated the controversial newsstand for thirty-five years or more through different agents. He alleges that it has never been operated by any agent without his full consent and approval until Clark and his wife wrongly appropriated it.

The answer also denies Clark's allegation that he purchased the franchise for the sale of papers there from one James Kenney and states further that no one has ever had a franchise for selling papers on that site which could be sold to anyone without his, O'Neill's, consent.

Concerning the ejection of Clark on September 5, O'Neill contends that the disorder was created there by Clark and his agents who interfered with the sale of O'Neill's papers and certain police officers intervened to maintain peace and permit O'Neill to continue to sell his papers as he had for some years.

Asserting that Clark had no rights to maintain a stand there, O'Neill charged that the former had at various times since December, 1942, violated peace and good order. He moved that the court rescind immediately its order directing Eyerman from interfering with Clark's sale of papers and asks that a hearing on the issue be held immediately.

Lewis M. Wilson is attorney for O'Neill while Harold E. Naughton represents Clark.

Two WAVES Arrive For Recruiting Duty

Ensign Margaret E. Rush, Lafayette, Ind., and Petty Officer Ruth Potter, Oakland, Cal., arrived here yesterday to join WAVE personnel now engaged in the drive to recruit a class of women from this area to be designated as the Cumberland Area WAVE class.

Seven WAVES are now on duty here, according to Chief Petty Officer Walter B. Warmee, naval recruiter, who announced the new arrivals last evening.

Prior to her enlistment, Ensign Rush was a Chicago Sears Roebuck and Company employee and is a graduate of Purdue university. Her brother, who enlisted in the air corps, told her at the time of her enlistment, "You keep 'em sailing, sis, I'll keep 'em flying."

Petty Officer Potter, a former San Francisco secretary, qualified at once as a petty officer due to her clerical experience.

Celanese Chemist Burned

Clarence Murphy, 27, Froeburg, assistant chemist at the Celanese plant, was burned about his left hand and both ears yesterday afternoon when a glass flask containing sulphuric acid and potassium permanganate burst open. He was admitted to Allegheny hospital at 4:20 p. m.

APPLICATION BLANKS FOR "A" RATION BOOKS ARE NOW AVAILABLE

Renewal applications for basic gasoline rations ("A" books) are now available at seventy-five official tire inspection stations in the county, according to Karl W. Radcliffe, chief clerk of War Price and Rationing Board 2311.

Motorists may secure the application forms (Form R-570) from any of the stations or at the ration board.

To obtain a renewal of present A books, applicants must submit by mail or in person to the board. A renewal application (Form R-570) properly filled in. Applicants must completely fill in all of the spaces within the heavy borders of both part A and B. Do not forget to fill in name and address in the lower left hand corner of part B.

Motorists must also submit their current Tire Inspection Record (Part B of OPA form R-534) which must show that at least one tire inspection has been made and approved.

The back cover of the present Basic A book which contains the applicant's signature and address must also be included.

Every effort will be made to have books in the hands of all applicants by the October 21 deadline, Radcliffe added.

Celanese Pistol Team Wins Third Straight Match

Lohr Leads Silks to Victory over City Police and Hagerstown Outfit

Marking up 1,345 out of a possible 1,500 points, the pistol team of the Celanese Corporation of America Police Department registered its third straight victory of the season yesterday by turning back the Cumberland Police Department and the Moller Organ Works, Hagerstown, yesterday at the Celanese range, McMullen highway.

Paced by M. Carlton Lohr, who chalked up high individual total of 284, including a perfect score for twenty-five yards slow fire, the undefeated Silksmen defeated the Cumberland police by the margin of eighteen points while the Hagerstown quintet finished third, 151 points in the rear of the runner-up team.

Individual runner-up honors went to Chief R. S. Stanley, of Celanese, who turned in a total of 283 while James E. Kelley, Jr., of the Silksmen, was third with 282. John H. Newhouse topped the Cumberland police with a 277 while Cpl. T. S. White, Sr., led the Moller pistol toters with 260.

Capt. A. F. Conley, plant guard officer of Western Maryland, was range officer, and Sgt. William Byrnes, of Eckhart, was official scorer.

Inspection of School Buses Is Scheduled For Sept. 30, Oct. 1

The annual fall inspection of school buses in Allegheny county will be conducted September 30 and October 1, Arthur G. Ramey, of the board of education, was advised yesterday by Paul J. Lowry, of the Safety department.

Representatives of the commissioner's office will inspect buses at six centers, as follows:

September 30—Lonaconing and Froeburg, morning; Oldtown, afternoon.

October 1—Cumberland, morning; Flinstone and Piney Plains, afternoon.

Ramey said that seventy buses operate on 110 routes in Allegheny county. Twenty of the buses are public utilities while the others are privately owned. In addition eight private cars are used as "feeders" for the bus lines.

A preliminary hearing for Louis Waingold, North Mehanic street pawnbroker, arrested last week as the alleged ring leader of a local black market in gasoline, has been continued, United States Commissioner Wilbur V. Wilson said last night.

Waingold's hearing was scheduled for 10 a. m., today before Commissioner Wilson, but was continued at the request of United States District Attorney Bernard J. Flynn, Wilson said.

Waingold was arraigned last week before Commissioner Wilson and pleaded not guilty to charges of transferring, assigning and possessing gasoline ration coupons. He was released on bond of $5,000.

Four other men arrested in the black market probe were released on bond of $500 each. They all waived a preliminary hearing.

Kelly Plant Will Furlough 3,596 By End of Month

2,111 Already Released; 250 Register in Day at USES Office

Two thousand one hundred and eleven persons have been furloughed at the Kelly plant since September 7, and by the time the contract with the War department expires on October 1, the total will reach 3,596, it was learned yesterday from an authoritative source.

A total of 1,420 were furloughed on three shifts yesterday and in the remaining ten days of this month 1,485 persons will be released.

Many Obtain Jobs

Since the layoffs started many persons have been fortunate in obtaining employment through the local USES office in the Public Safety building due to the labor shortage in other parts of the state.

Today representatives of the Maryland Sanitary Corporation, the Railroad Retirement Board, the WAVES and SPARS and Social Security Board will be at the USES office for the purpose of surveying the surplus labor situation here and offering job opportunities for those who desire to go out of the city.

Representatives of the Triumph Explosives Company and the National Magnesium Company, both of Elkton, Md., will arrive here Wednesday.

Two hundred and fifty men and women registered yesterday at the USES office.

The USES has many local openings among which are the B. & O. railroad, which seeks brakemen, firemen and laborers; the Celanese Corporation, West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company at Luke, coal mining companies, orchards and many smaller industries.

Few Claims Filed

The local office of the Maryland Compensation Board announced yesterday that in spite of the heavy layoffs at Kelly few persons registered for unemployment compensation. This is due, it was pointed out, to the fact that a good number have not been employed long enough to be eligible for benefits under the Maryland laws.

Out-of-town persons who are eligible for compensation may file at the city building, Westernport, tomorrow from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., and in the Lonaconing council chamber, from 1 to 3:30 p. m.; Thursday, from 1 to 3:30 p. m., in the Community building, Mt. Savage, and Friday, from 9 a. m. to 3:30 p. m., in Fireman's hall, Froeburg.

Howell To Head Coal Dealers' ODT Committee

Organization Will Work on Wartime Transportation Problems

C. Eugene Howell, Cumberland coal distributor and member of the Hagerstown ODT district's Solid Fuel Advisory committee, last night was named chairman of a local committee to work on problems pertaining to the wartime transportation of coal in two Maryland and five West Virginia counties.

The meeting of coal dealers and truckers in Allegany and Garrett counties in Maryland, and Hardy, Mineral, Hampshire, Grant and Pendleton counties in West Virginia, was called at the request of the Office of Defense Transportation after formation of the district Solid Fuel Advisory committee last Thursday.

In addition to naming Howell chairman at the session last night in city hall, the thirty coal dealers and truckers present named Frank Wineland, Cumberland, as secretary; and D. G. Ridder, Kitzmiller; E. P. Price, Froeburg; and J. Hanan, Romney, W. Va., as committee members.

A program to ease the local coal shortage and maintain the delivery of coal to homes throughout the winter months will be studied by the local committee, Howell said, adding that the group will attempt to work out a plan with coal operators in the local section to eliminate the necessity of trucks waiting at mines for loads.

A report of local progress will be submitted to the district committee which is expected to impart further instructions to the local committee.

Lloyd K. Fearnow, Hagerstown, representative of the district office of ODT, spoke briefly at the meeting last night, outlined the ODT program, and promised the ODT will do all in its power to assist the local organization.

At the meeting last night, Fearnow came to the aid of seven truckers who are running short of gasoline and made it possible for them to keep their trucks in operation. One of the truckers had just bought a new truck and had no gasoline for it while another trucker had just enough fuel to keep going today.

Teachers To Issue Ration Book No. 4

Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of Allegheny county public schools, and other school superintendents of Maryland met with Maryland OPA administration officials yesterday in Baltimore and discussed tentative plans for the distribution of War Ration Book No. 4 for which Marylanders will register late next month.

State Rationing Officer J. William Eggleston said that dates for the issuance of the new ration books had not yet been fixed, but that they would probably be issued sometime during the last ten days of October.

Public school teachers will again be asked to volunteer their services to issue the books, he said, adding that the registration period would last for at least three days.

While detailed directions for the use of the new war ration books have not yet been received by the state OPA, Eggleston declared, it is expected that the No. 4 books will be used in the rationing of processed foods, picking up where the No. 2 books leave off.

Meanwhile, the rationing official said, distribution of the No. 3 ration book has been completed except to a few late registrants. The No. 3 book, which was distributed entirely by mail, had gone to 2,030,000 Marylanders today, as compared with the 2,047,000 who received the No. 2 book.

The slight decline, he said, could be attributed to the fact that figures for the No. 3 book do not include books which went to members of the armed forces.

Eggleston said that the registrations for the No. 4 book would be simple, requiring no declaration of food supplies on hand as was done during the registration for the No. 2 book. The form will be a family registration he said, with one member of a family being qualified to obtain books for all the members of his family.

Distribution of the No. 4 books, which will go into effect early in November, started last week from OPA regional offices, Eggleston said, although none have yet been received in Maryland.

Man Who Died on Street Carried Plenty of Money

William Dunn, 62-year-old tavern employee, of 208 Oldtown road, who dropped dead Saturday afternoon on Williams street, was carrying plenty of money with him at the time of his death.

Yesterday, county authorities counted the dead man's roll and found that it totaled $4,549.71. The bills found on him included $2,020 in $20 notes, $1,900 in $10 notes, $900 in $50 notes and $315 in $5 notes.

Dunn once worked in a Froeburg beer parlor, police said, but in recent years had been operating the Oldtown road tavern of H. B. Rice. He had no immediate relatives, police said, and always carried a large sum of money, apparently his life's savings.

EARL FOLMER'S BODY WILL ARRIVE AT HIS HOME HERE TODAY

The body of Earl Folmer, Jr., son of Lewis and Edna Blizzard Folmer, 236 Paca street, who died Sunday afternoon in a Hagerstown hospital from injuries suffered in an automobile crash Friday night, will be taken to his home today.

Folmer was found dying about noon Sunday after the car in which he had been riding catapulted over an embankment about three miles east of Hancock late Friday night.

His companion, Alexander Shipley, Baltimore, formerly of Cumberland, was dead and Folmer died five hours after he was found. A short time before the accident occurred, Folmer's sister, Miss Catherine Irene Folmer, Baltimore, plummeted from the car, about 100 feet from where it went over the embankment. She is recovering from bruises and shock in a Hagerstown hospital.

Besides his parents and his sister, Folmer is survived by two other sisters, Mrs. Alice Shipley, Baltimore; and Miss Gladys Folmer, Cumberland.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday with the Rev. J. L. Stewart officiating. Interment will be in Zion Memorial park, Bedford road.

O'Kelly To Leave Strand To Manage Group of Theaters

Appointed to New Position at Glens Falls, N. Y. by Schine Circuit

Fleiding K. O'Kelly, manager of the Strand theater since February, 1941, has been appointed manager of a group of theaters of the Schine Circuit, Inc., and will leave next week to take over his new duties at Glens Falls, N. Y.

O'Kelly was advised of his new appointment yesterday in a telegram received from the headquarters of the Schine Circuit, Inc., Gloversville, N. Y. His successor will be named at a conference scheduled here Friday.

Born in Morgantown, W. Va., in 1892, O'Kelly has been associated with the theatrical business for the last thirty-three years. Since joining the Schine circuit ten years ago he managed theaters in Ohio and Amsterdam, N. Y., before coming to Cumberland. He also managed theaters in Morgantown, W. Va., Uniontown and Altoona, Pa., before joining the Schine circuit which now operates approximately 170 theaters.

O'Kelly and his wife, the former Caroline Leslie, former society editor of the Uniontown, Pa., Herald, expect to leave for Glens Falls next Monday. A son, First Lieut. Fleiding K. O'Kelly, has been stationed at the United States Army Quartermaster Supply Base in England for the past year. Urban O'Kelly, brother of the manager of the Strand theater, is in charge of the Associated Press office in Harrisburg, Pa.

Committee Favors Honor Roll Exercises On Armistice Day

Armistice day, November 11, is favored as the logical date for the dedicated of the Allegheny County Service Honor Roll, it was announced last evening following a meeting of the War Memorial committee at city hall.

Plans will be formulated for the dedication ceremonies at a meeting to be held by the committee Monday, October 4.

A resolution of respect to the late Capt. J. Philip Roman, who served on the committee, was adopted, and a letter was ordered sent to Jack L. Towler, former chairman of the committee, thanking him for his efforts in helping make the honor roll possible. Towler resigned as chairman following his induction in the army. He is now stationed in California.

Local Man Took Part in Invasion Of Sicily

Lieut. Thomas B. Finan, former Cumberland attorney, was a member of the Thunderbird division which played a major role in the conquest of Sicily, according to Thomas R. Henry, war correspondent of the Washington Star.

Another Thunderbird officer who took part in the Sicilian invasion was Lieut. Joseph B. Thomas, Winchester, Va., a son of Thomas Thomas, formerly of Eckhart. His mother is the former Miss Helen Tucker, daughter of the late Charles Tucker, Froeburg. Mrs. Harry B. Colburn, Froeburg, is his aunt.

Lieut. Finan is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Finan.
